ARTIST DISPLAYS WORK...

'City Of Chicago' Builder 'Lucky'

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Red Grooms had the "element of surprise" to his advantage when he produced the massive, yet detailed "City of Chicago."

The New York artist, who talked with newsman in Lincoln Monday, said "we were lucky with 'Chicago,'" since the installation was the first of its kind that he had made.

The "City of Chicago," one of the American entries in the Venice Biennale, is a multi-dimensional structure, mechanized and wired for sound, depicting the Chicago River area of the Windy City.

Countless Chicago symbols, including such well-known features as the Loop, Mayor Daley, Mrs. O'Leary's cow and burlesque shows, were literally "built" into the gigantic art piece.

Fills Room

"Chicago" fills an entire room in the Sheldon Art Gallery where it will be exhibited beginning Tuesday along with the other American entries at the Venice Biennale.

Sheldon Director Norman Geske was U.S. Commissioner of the Venice exhibition.

Grooms, 31, revealed that he had been deluged with requests to "come build Rome," "come build London," "come build Los Angeles" at the gala opening party of the Biennale.

"That's scary," he declared, to think about doing another city. "So many elements are involved.

"When people don't expect anything it is much easier," he pointed out, indicating that other cities he might build might not meet expectations of those who commission the projects.

Grooms, his wife Mimi helping with the painting, Rusty Warren, and Ed Flood, who animated the pieces, worked on "Chicago" for 3½ months "on an emergency schedule." The artists moved from their Manhattan, N.Y. studio to Chicago to build the art piece.

After "about 10 days" of library research and polaroid picture-taking, actual construction began. They started with the arch and "from there it built itself." Ideas for the rest of it "just came spontaneously as we worked," Grooms noted.

The installation of five main pieces is built with plywood and beaver board, painted with acrylic. While it is difficult to move and reconstruct, damage is easily repaired, the artist indicated.

Mrs. Grooms said she felt viewers would better understand "Chicago" after seeing one of Grooms' films being shown on the University of Nebraska campus this weekend, titled "Fat Feet."

The Grooms' exhibit, which he said could be termed "satire," was described at the Biennale as the "triumphant climax" of his other creations including paintings, cut-outs, movie props and happenings.

"There is the usual process of artistic evaluation, consisting of selection, refinement, simplication, exaggeration, distillation, but always with an absolute faith in appearances," it was stated.

Influence Seen On Paris Talks

... CREDENTIALS PRESENTED

New York Times Service

By PAUL HOFMANN

Paris — Cuba announced Monday that she had become the first country to establish formal diplomatic relations with the Viet Cong.

The step, disclosed by the Cuban Embassy in Algiers apparently after preliminary negotiations there, implied recognition of the guerrilla movement's claim to full government status.

Bearing On Talks

In the view of experts here, the step may have a bearing on the Paris peace talks because it seems to suggest a new assertiveness by the National Liberation Front — the Viet Cong — in the international field. This assertiveness may influence the front's dealings with Hanoi and possibly Saigon, the specialists said.

The Cubans said Raul Valdes Vivo, Havana's first ambassador to the NLF, presented his credentials to the chairman of its central committee, Nguyen Huu Tho, "somewhere in liberated South Vietnam" March 4.

Algiers is one of about 20 capitals of Communist and nonaligned nations where the front maintains missions. They have no formal diplomatic status but are granted diplomatic courtesies by the host governments.

A deputy [illegible] front's team at the Paris [illegible] Hoai Nam, was chief of the Viet Cong's mission in Algiers from 1966 to last year. He made a short visit there recently.

Kiem 'Foreign Minister'

The head of the front's team in Paris, Tran Buu Kiem, is chairman of its external relations commission. As chief of all NLF missions and other activities abroad, Kiem is unofficially called the Viet Cong foreign minister. He and his aides were unavailable for comment on the Cuban announcement.

Early this month, a visiting front delegation was given an official welcome in Hanoi in what was interpreted in Saigon as a move to enhance the Viet Cong's position. But the North Vietnamese refrained on that occasion from any reference to the front leadership as a government.

Allied analysts here believe that the Hanoi regime is not eager to recognize the front as a government.

Cleared With Hanoi?

The analysts are wondering whether Cuba's recognition of the Viet Cong had been cleared with the Hanoi regime. If not, Monday's announcement would be evidence that the front has greater autonomy than conceded by Washington and Saigon.

Leaders and spokesmen of the Saigon regime have recently indicated that a dialogue with the front might one day be possible, if its members laid down its arms and acted as a domestic opposition group.

The tenuous hopes for talks between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong, would be shattered it is thought here, if the front proclaimed itself as a provisional government for South Vietnam.

Gov. Tiemann Still Undecided On Future

... BUT HE DOESN'T WANT TO SEE WORK GO DOWN THE DRAIN

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. Norbert Tiemann, flying north up the flood-threatened Elkhorn Valley Monday, studied the ice-clogged river through binoculars, then turned to consider the question of whether he will seek re-election next year.

With the filing deadline for candidates a full year way, the question naturally is premature, Tiemann noted.

And no decision has been made one way or the other, nor is one likely for some time.

But the governor, it seems, may be edging almost imperceptively toward an affirmative position.

"I don't want to see four years of work go down the drain," Tiemann pointed out. "I hope we can keep this thing going."

That means, the governor said, that he would be influenced by a predetermination of who his successor might be if he chose to leave the governorship after one term.

"That will very definitely be a factor," Tiemann said.

"But the determining factor is likely to be how well we get along with governmental reorganization, and what happens in this legislative session."

Concerned

Tiemann is particularly concerned with legislative action on open housing, governmental reform and highway proposals.

"Open housing is certainly one of the major things. The corrections reorganization bill is another. And highway legislation is right at the top," he said.

"You can see the pattern unfolding on highways.

"We now have the authority to use bonds to finance them. We niw have a long-range program for the first time.

"We now have the authority to use bonds to finance them. We now have a long-range program for the first time.

'Here's How'

"We have gone to the people and said here is a plan and here is how to pay for it. Now it's up to you.

"I think they'll buy it. It's an excellent plan."

Below, the snowcover grew thicker as the twin-engine aircraft penetrated bright blue skies en route to O'Neill.

After more than two years, Tiemann still find the governorship interesting and challenging — although admittedly the focus had changed somewhat.

Immediate Action

His first year was concentrated on vast and immediate legislative action. There was a new tax system to be constructed, new programs for state aid to schools, cities and counties to be enacted, a university merger to be approved.

In a spirit of legislative-executive cooperation, all that was accomplished in 1967.

"Now there are new challenges, new things that need to be done," the governor noted.

Firmer Hand

Some of those changes are being wrought administratively as Tiemann applies a firmer hand to the operation of executive departments under his control.

Some will require legislative action — and public support. The ambitious highway program is one of them, the governor pointed out.

"Yes, the challenges are still there," Tiemann said.

For a man who thrives on challenge, that statement may indicate the form of the governor's ultimate decision as he begins to move from the fluid state of a non-political year toward the political countdown of 1970.

Bond Issues OKd For May Elections

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln City Council voted Monday to place proposals on the May general election ballot providing for bond issues totaling $2.35 million to pay for capital improvements.

Meeting for the last time at the old City Hall building, the council approved four resolutions placing the general obligation bond issues on the ballot.

The bond issues would pay for storm sewers, libraries, fire stations and a new asphalt plant.

If approved by the voters, the bonds will be issued at legal interest rates and will be paid over a 20-year period with the city having the option to call in the bonds after 10 years.

In Agreement

The council's vote was in agreement with the recommendations the Capital Improvements Finance Advisory Board made to the City Council a week ago.

The bond issues — which will be voted on separately — are as follows:

—Two new fire stations ($205,000) with one to consolidate the present University Place and Havelock stations and the other to replace the College View station.

—Two new libraries ($860,000), with one to be in southeast Lincoln and the other to be in northeast Lincoln.

—A new asphalt plant ($285,000), which will replace the existing one now in the path of the University of Nebraska land acquisition program and permit expansion of paving repair facilities.

—Storm sewer installation, ($1,000,000) as a part of the storm sewer improvement program.

Motion Dies

Councilman John Comstock introduced a motion to increase the storm sewer bond issue by $2 million. But the motion died when it failed to receive a seconding motion.

Jack Hart, chairman of the Lincoln City Library Board, appeared before the council in support of the bond issue for the two libraries.

Coordinated Effort

He said a broard-based coordinated effort should be made to "sell" the four bond issues to the community as a package which could make for a better Lincoln.

He indicated that the library board would request money through general revenues for the southeast branch library should the bond issue fail.

U.S., Peruvian Jetliners Hijacked

Havana (AP) — Hijackers forced two jetliners, one from the United States, the other from Peru, to Cuba Monday, bringing to 20 the number of commercial airliners diverted to the Communist island this year.

A Faucett Airlines Boeing 727 on a flight from Lima to Arequipa, 600 miles south of the Peruvian capital, was hijeacked by four young men who then let the other 69 passengers leave the plane during a refueling stop at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

The second plane diverted to Havana was a Delta Airlines DC9 on a flight from Atlanta to Augusta, Ga., with 60 passengers and a crew of four on board.

Both jetliners arrived at Jose Marti International Airport without incident.

The Lima hijackers were taken into custody immediately by Cuban officials. There was no word on what happened to the hijacker of the U.S. plane.

The U.S. plane was diverted by a single hijacker as it was approaching the Augusta airport. The flight originated in Dallas, Tex., and was to terminate in Charleston, S.C.

Legislators Hear Medicaid Report

The Legislature was informed Monday that it may not cut the scope of medicaid services without running the danger of forfeiting federal aid. (For this and other stories on the Legislature see pages 5, 6, 13, 14.)

Official: Crash Is 'Accident'

Caracas (UPI) — A high police official said Monday night preliminary technical information indicated Sunday's crash of a DC9 jetliner, the worst airline disaster in history, was "simply an accident" although rumors of sabotage may be investigated.

Authorities mounted a coordinated U.S.-Venezuelan investigation proportionate to the crash that killed at least 154 persons, including 46 Americans. They flew the DC9's flight recorder to Washington for analysis and dispatched eight investigating teams to the scene of the crash near Maracaibo airport.

Pedro Perez Perazo, political director of the interior (police) ministry, told United Press International late Monday, "We may investigate those rumors spread about a possible sabotage of the Viasa Airlines DC9...

"Apparently, the rumors are not backed by facts in the first impressions of the many investigations we are carrying on.

"I'm happy of that, certainly, and the technical reports we are receiving indicate that the accident was simply an accident," Perazo said.

State Fire Officials Suspect JFK Dorm Blaze Was Set

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

The State Fire Marshal's Office revealed Monday it has "strong suspicions" that a mid-February fire in Wahoo which resulted in one death was set.

The Feb. 15 fire in a John F. Kennedy College dormitory swept through the dormitory's lobby and seriously burned housemother Mrs. Marion Maddux, 72, who died five days later in a Lincoln hospital.

Although the office feels an incendiary origin is the only reaily plausible explanation for the fire, a spokesman noted that "there's no way to prove it at this point."

Three other students also suffered minor injuries in the blaze, which caused about $10,000 to the dormitory.

Deputy Fire Marshal Wally Barnett, who has been in charge of the month-long investigation, said the fire marshal's office "can't say definitely that the fire was set — but the balance of evidence points to an incendiary origin."

Barnett said the student who reported the fire claimed to have passed through the lobby about a half hour or 20 minutes before without noticing smoke or flames.

That tends to rule out the possibility that the fire could have begun from a smouldering cigarette.

The floor tile was also burned more deeply along cracks, hinting that an inflammable liquid might have been poured on the floor and ignited, he said.

Investigations will continue, he said, but because of manpower shortages and other needs the scope will be decreased. He praised the cooperation of JFK officials, noting they offered "all types of help."

Earlier in the month, some fire officials had commented privately on the inadequacies of the dormitory's fire protection system.

A lack of fire doors and adequate exit routes was especially cited.

Some 80 students had been forced to evacuate the building by the early morning fire, many of them leaping from upper story windows into outside snow drifts.

Mrs. Maddux was forced to flee through the blazing lobby in order to make her escape from the building.

MAN REPORTS SEEING SAUCER LAND NEAR CAR

A 49-year-old Lincoln man told police Monday night that a saucer-shaped unidentified flying object landed in front of his car at the intersection of 70th and Havelock.

Police said Herbert Lancaster of 7218 Morton told officers that the saucer landed at the intersection just in front of his car and turned off the auto's engine.

Lancaster told police that he observed "an ordinary average guy" peer from a window on the UFO. Shortly thereafter, the saucer took off "at a high rate of speed," police said Lancaster reported.

Police said they had no other reports of UFO sightings Monday.

New York Times News Summary

Moscow Makes Consulate Proposal To U.S.

(C) New York Times News Service

Washington — The Soviet Union has proposed the opening of an American consulate in Leningrad and a Soviet consulate in San Francisco, diplomatic sources said. Though the move could be interpreted as an expression of a will to extend cooperation, the Nixon administration is sounding out congressional and departmental opinions before replying to the Russians.

Anti-China Campaign Stepped Up

Moscow — The Soviet Union has stepped up its campaign to convince other countries, the Warsaw Pact nations in particular, that China is a danger to world peace. Diplomats in Moscow believe that the attempt to ostracize China is being carried on in the hope that the Mao clique will be overthrown. (Mao Tse-tung is the Chinese leader.)

Cuba Recognizes Viet Cong

Paris — Cuba has become the first country to formally recognize the Viet Cong National Liberation Front as a government. (More on Page 1).

Israel Rejects French Note

Washington — France has informed Israel and the United States that she no longer expects complete Israeli withdrawal from captured areas as part of a Middle East settlement. This moved the French closer to Israel's position, but the French note was rejected by Israel on the grounds it was "negative" and "hostile."

Britain May Invade Anguilla

London — Britain was apparently ready Monday to land a force of paratroopers and police on the Caribbean island of Anguilla to deal with its rebel regime. The landing would put Britain in the position of being ready to use force against a black rebel state, but not against a white rebel government such as Rhodesia.

Prime Rate Goes Up Again

New York — The government's drive against inflation has forced the nation's major banks to raise their prime interest rate for the fourth time since December. The rise in the minimum rate charged to a bank's most creditworthy customers to 7½% is expected to help slow down the economy. (More on Page 2.)

Chiefs Switched ABM Position

Washington — The Joint Chiefs of Staff abandoned their stand in favor of a thick antimissile shield a week before President Nixon announced his decision for a "light" system. Previously, the five service chiefs had pushed for a system to protect at least 25 cities against an all-out Soviet attack.

Doves Attack Vietnam Policy

Washington — The Nixon administration's Vietnam policies were attacked by Senate doves for the first time. Sen. George McGovern castigated the administration for its lack of "strength and courage to genuinely reverse our course." Although this was the first open attack by the antiwar senators, some still feel that the President should be given a little more time.

Dr. Gatch Hospitalized

Washington — Dr. Donald E. Gatch, a crusader against hunger and intestinal parasites in South Carolina, has entered a government hospital for treatment of what he termed "a combination of malnutrition and parasties." He said he apparently acquired the parasites during visits to infected children.

Hickel Wants More Park Cash

Washington — The Budget Bureau is being pushed by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel to approve a request for more money to enable the national parks to stay open seven days a week. A money squeeze has forced the National Park Service to limit operations at a time when the number of park visitors has touched an all-time high.

$1 Billion Urged To Fight Cancer

Washingtin — The Urban Affairs Council has recommended to President Nixon the expenditure of at least $1 billion over the next four years to fight hunger. This money would be spent in addition to funds already proposed by former President Johnson.

Soviet Bloc's Summit Short

Budapest, Hungry (AP) — Chiefs of East Europe's Communist allies called Monday for an all-European conference and said East-West disputes on the continent "can only be solved through peaceful means,, by way of talks, not through the threatened use of force."

The appeal was released after a Warsaw Pact summit meeting that lasted barely two hours. The document apparently was drawn up even before leaders of the seven pact nations arrived for the shortest summit in the organization's history.

Reports in Yugoslavia, not a pact member, said newly aggravted border tensions between the Soviet Union and Red China forced alterations in proceedings of the meeting.

The appeal and a communique on military aspects of the meeting were issued as the Communist party leaders, premiers and defense and foreign ministers prepared to return to their home capitals.

'Good Neighbors'

The appeal said Warsaw Pact members — the Soviet Union, East Germany, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Czechoslovia and Romania — want "to live in peace and as good neighbors with the other peoples of Europe."

"We must live beside one another, and no one can change that factor," it said.

Except for an indirect reference to forces that allegedly do not desire European peace, the appeal was devoid of customary Communist attacks on Western "imperialism."

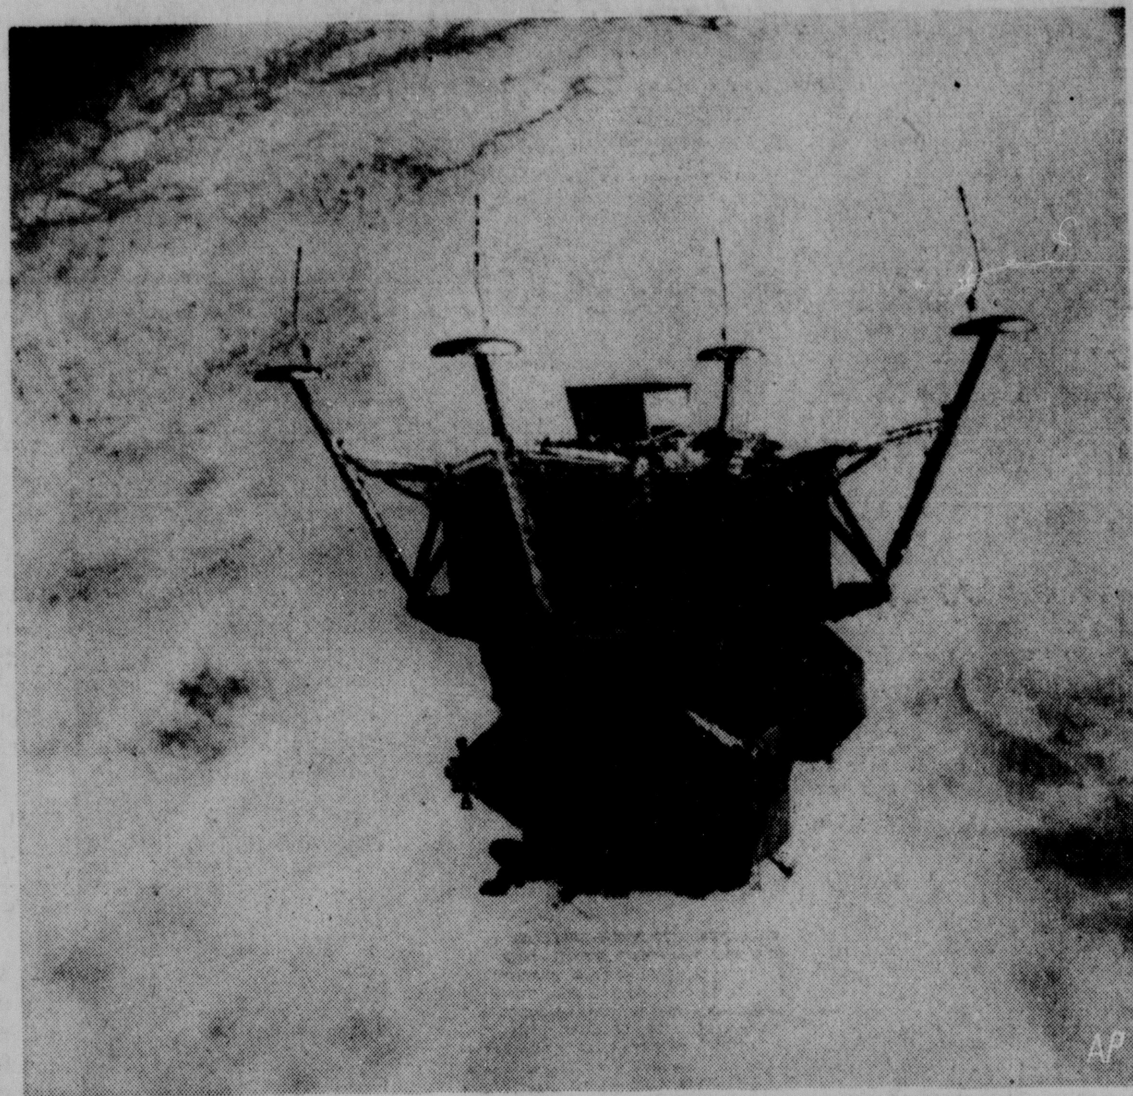
'Realistic Possibility'

It said: "Warsaw Treaty member countries are of the opinion that there is a realistic possibility for us to create European security with joint efforts."

To that end, the appeal said, the pact countries were renewing a 3-year-old appeal for an all-Europe conference "to discuss questions of European security and peaceful coexistence."

The first call for all-European conference, at the Bucharest Warsaw Pact summit in 1966, indicated that the United States might be invited to take part, both as a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and as an "interested party."

This time, the call went only to European countries.



LUNAR MODULE FLIES ALONG

The Apollo 9 lunar module is shown in flight after it separated from the command-service module in the fifth day of the orbital flight of astronauts James McDivitt, David Scott and Russell Schweickart. The string-like pieces on the four landing pods are the moon sensors which tell pilots when touchdown nears.

Prime Rate Goes Up To 7½%

New York (AP) — Major banks Monday raised their prime rate, the interest charged big borrowers, to another all-time high of 7½% from 7%. It was the fourth boost in four months.

Bankers said the action was taken because available lending funds have dwindled in the prevailing tight money situation.

The immediate effect will be to make it more costly for corporations to borrow to finance expansion. The probable longer term result would be to increase the cost of financing purchases of homes, cars, appliances, furniture and other consumer items.

Morgan Guaranty Trust

The newest raise was initiated by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Other major banks were quick to follow.

The recent series of prime rate boosts began last Dec. 2 with a raise to 6½% from 6¼%. This was followed by increases to 6¾% Dec. 18 and to 7% Jan. 7.

A New York banker gave these reasons for higher interest costs:

—Money markets have been very tight — the Federal Reserve Board is pursuing policies of restraint.

—Banks with London branches have been borrowing heavily in the Eurodollar market. Eurodollars are dollars held abroad, and interest charges on these funds have climbed to 8½%.

A New York banker commented: "The volume of funds available for single-family homes is likely to be curtailed. First, because of legal ceilings on mortgage rates established by state legislatures with no relation to the present money market. Second, because savings institutions are not going to be able to compete for funds."

Prospective home buyers face the likelihood of being caught in a crunch not only from higher interest rates but skyrocketing lumber prices which have swollen the prices of homes by up to 20% in the last year.

Most Lincoln Banks Indicate Their Rates Will Go Up

Most Lincoln banks indicated Monday that they will be increasing their prime interest rates in line with similar increases throughout the country from 7 to 7½%.

A spokesman at First National Bank said the increase there would be effective "immediately." Most other Lincoln banks foresee increases and expect board action shortly.

The increase reflects "an accurate condition of the money market," a spokesman at the National Bank of Commerce said. He added that banks hate to see the increase as much as anyone.

R. H. Tornblom, president of City National Bank, said it "looks like all banks will have to do it." He called it a "sign of the times."

Tornblom said City National officials have been expecting the increase.

At Gateway Bank, a spokesman said the national increase "will have a reflection on our (rate) structure." He noted, however, that the bank has few prime borrowers.

A West Gate Bank official said its rate trend will be upward as the prime rate goes up. And at Citizens State Bank, a spokesman said it will probably have to raise its prime rate "to stay competitive."

A Union Bank officer disagreed with the others. He said that he "foresees no danger of an increase."

Panel Holds Segregated Housing Is No Excuse For Segregated Schools

Washington (AP) — A three-man federal panel — expanding a Supreme Court school desegregation ruling into a new area — held Monday that segregated housing is no excuse for segregated schools.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Review Authority rejected a Raleigh, N.C., plan for setting up attendance zones without regard to race to integrate its schools.

The Review Authority, citing a Supreme Court ruling of last May that "freedom of choice" desegregation plans are acceptable only if they work, said the same test must apply to zoning desegregation plans.

By The Results

Although the Supreme Court mentioned only "freedom of choice" plans, the authority said, it established the doctrine that desegregation plans must be judged by results, not intentions.

The Raleigh Board of Education's responsibility, the authority held, was to eliminate a segregated school system once required by law. The authority did not rule on whether the Raleigh plan works, but relied on a hearing examiner's words that segregation continues.

Raleigh's integration plan had been approved by a federal hearing examiner who blamed continuing school segregation on what he called the city's segregated housing pattern, not the school board's plan.

The examiner, Robert C. Boyce of Nashville, said he found no evidence of "racial gerrymandering" of the school zones. The plan also gives both Negro and white students the option of transferring across racial lines into schools in which they are the minority.

But the Review Authority said the Civil Rights Act of 1964 seeks to eliminate "the pattern of segreaged education" and school districts must come up with desegregation plans that do so.

Federal funds may be cut off to districts that do not desegregate under terms of the civil rights act.

The Review Authority, however, did not recommend a federal fund cutoff. It simply sent the case back to the hearing examiner for reconsideration — with instructions to consider the case in terms of whether the plan did indeed bring desegregation.

Washington (UPI) — Sen. William B. Spong, D-Va., said he will make a "hunger tour" of economically depressed areas of hs state.

U.S. Industry Still Growing In February

Washington (AP) — The output of U.S. industries continued to expand in February, the Federal Reserve Board reported Monday.

The rise in the industrial production index, one of the most comprehensive government barometers on the behavior of the economy, tallied with recent statements by Nixon administration spokesmen that efforts to force a slowdown of the inflation-stoked economy so far have produced little results.

After seasonal adjustment, February industrial production was rated at 169.5% of the 1957-59 average, compared with a January index of 169.1. There has not been a downturn in the indicator since last August.

Shelton Reports Minor Flooding

. . . Warm Temps Bring Thaw

By United Press International

Floodwaters from the swollen Wood River had part of the community of Shelton under about two feet of water Monday, and the possibility of record flooding in surrounding eastern and central Nebraska communities loomed nearer.

The U.S. Weather Bureau had earlier warned of possible record floods — surpassing the 1967 inundation when the state's third largest city, Grand Island, was two-thirds under water. The Wood River was the culprit in that year also.

A spokesman at Shelton said there was about two feet of water over three of four blocks of the downtown area, but "we're built for it, we can stand it." He said it was just normal runoff from the plains outside of town and happens whenever there's a fast thaw.

But the real danger appeared to lay in the next few days.

St. Patrick Day springlike temperatures soared to 69 at McCook, 68 at Omaha, 67 at Beatrice and 62 at both Lincoln and Alliance. The mercury was considerably cooler in areas where a snow cover still remained, staying in the 40s at most of those spots.

The flooding was being caused by the above freezing temperatures this week, which resulted in a rapid melting of the heavy snows received during the winter.

River Bankful

The Wood River at Riverdale, located west of Shelton, was below bankful, but a crest of 13-feet was expected Tuesday. This would be two feet above flood stage.

Gibbon expected a 16-foot crest Wednesday, Alda a 12-foot crest Thursday and Grand Island a 5.5-foot crest Friday. All would be above flood stage.

The crest during the disastrous flood in Grand Island in 1967 was 5.8 feet.

Already residents in the south part of Grand Island were reporting water in their basements. This was attributed in some part to a high ground water level at the community.

The weather Bureau advised all persons in the area to keep informed of developments through news media channels.

Ice jamming in some Nebraska rivers was expected to add to the flood danger.

A flood crest of nine feet above flood stage was forecast for the Big Blue River at Beatrice, and five feet above flood stage at Crete and Barneston. Flood stage on the Blue was also expected at Seward.

Big Blue Up

The Big Blue's West Fork was predicted to go two feet out of its banks at Dorchester. A stage of four to five feet above flooding level was in the outlook on Turkey Creek near Wilber.

Creeks along the Niobrara River from Valentine to Niobrara were expected to rise and be bankful or higher by late Tuesday. Bankful stages were also likely on the Niobrara below Valentine by Tuesday evening.

The Elkhorn River was also causing some trouble Monday.

At Norfolk, the river was expected to crest at 8.0 feet Thursday, well above the flood stage of 6.5 feet. At Neligh it was forecast to hit at just about the flood stage of 10 feet on Friday.

The North Fork of the Elkhorn is predicted to be 15 feet at Pierce Wednesday, three feet over flood levels. Flooding is also in the outlook for Winslow and Waterloo.

Logan Creek may reach as high as 21.5 feet at its crest Thursday at Uehling. The flood stage there is 16 feet.

The Platte River is expected to surpass flood stage by half a foot in Grand Island on Wednesday and by 1½ feet in North Bend Thursday. The Platte will be three feet over flood stage at Louisville on Friday.

The Loup River at Columbus is predicted to rise to 12.5 feet by Wednesday, 3½ feet over flood level. The North Loup branch at St. Paul will rise 2½ feet over flood stage by Wednesday.

Agencies Review Plans In Face Of Flood Threats

By DAVE ZIMMERMAN
Star Staff Writer

Thirty-six private and government organizations conferred Monday to review plans in the face of the flood threat which could plague Nebraska this spring.

Phil L. Stewart of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said that although no one can predict what will happen, the agencies wanted to formulate a picture of the "worst" that could happen.

"And if the worst happens," he said, "then we know we have done exactly the right thing."

The officials met at the State Civil Defense office's Emergency Operating Center to lay strategy to aid endangered communities as above freezing temperatures were expected to push rivers in the area above the flood stage.

Adjutant General Lyle Welch said that in view of the heavy snows this season, "it would be a miracle if we luck out."

A Weather Bureau meteorologist, Gordon Lippert, said that during the past week the weather has been "miraculously good" and that only traces of precipitation have been received during this period.

Another occurrence which makes the flood picture not entirely gloomy, he said, is the fact that warm weather has been moving in from the south, which permits downstream river channel to thaw out before runoff begins in upstream reaches.

Heavy Snowpack

There is still a lot of water — about five inches — in the snowpack around Norfolk, officials said, but they estimated that about one-fourth inch of moisture has disappeared during the past week due to evaporation and ground soaking

Ed Stapowich of the Omaha Weather Bureau said considerable ground soaking could be expected in the northeast part of the state because of the near-drought conditions during the past two years.

But with temperatures expected for the remainder of the week to average from two to four degrees above normal throughout central and eastern Nebraska, the experts noted that several rivers were expected to overflow their banks by mid-week.

Already, Shelton, just west of Grand Island, had water at the south end of its main street, said Weather Bureau officials.

Other areas which may get their first taste of flood conditions this week, the experts said, were the areas of the Big and Little Blue rivers and their tributaries.

Temporary Levees

Weather Bureau forecasters also warned of trouble on the Wood River west of Grand Island, although Burl Johnson, deputy state civil defense director, said a aerial survey Monday gave no hint of likely trouble there.

Stewart said plans were already under way to construct temporary levees at Norfolk, Verdigre, Schuyler, Columbus and North Bend.

In addition, he said, over one million sandbags were stored for emergency use at Omaha, Nebraska City, Lincoln, Columbus and Norfolk.

Temps Were Below Normal For 13th Consecutive Week

For the 13th consecutive week, temperatures in Nebraska last week averaged below normal except for local areas that occasionally reached normal or slightly above.

This was revealed Monday by the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics in its weekly crop-weather report.

Temperatures the past week averaged from 10 to 15 degrees below normal, but warm air invaded the state Sunday.

Little precipitation was received the past week, but a heavy snow cover containing a high water content still covers much of the Sandhills and the central and northeast portions of the state, the bureau said.

Other comments:

Snow and blowing snow clogged rural roads in northern areas during the early part of the week. Low temperatures gave some relief from the mud, but surfaces were very rough. Ice remained over portions of some wheat fields most of the week.

Hay Disappearing

Limited farm work was accomplished while the ground was frozen. There is a good demand for forage feeds and bedding materials. Hay supplies are diminishing rapidly and shortages are reported in 70% of the counties.

Calf mortality rate is higher than usual because of the severe winter weather. Some hog losses also occurred from exposure and disease.

Summary of Conditions

A broad trough of low pressure remains over Nebraska and Iowa and will persist until a Pacific front moves Tuesday afternoon and night. The front is located from the north central portion of Montana to southwestern Idaho and into west central California. By Wednesday morning the front will be located from extreme southeastern Iowa to west central Missouri and into the southwestern corner of Kansas.

The front will bring only a slight increase in cloudiness over the area with clear to partly cloudy skies Tuesday and partly cloudy skies Tuesday night and Wednesday. There is a very slight chance of a few showers over extreme northwestern Iowa Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. Temperatures will remain mild over the area until the front passes with some cooling — about 5 to 10 degrees cooler than usual — expected after the front passes Wednesday.

Norfolk Pair Among Dead In Air Crash

By The Associated Press

A revised but still unofficial list Monday of U.S. citizens killed in the crash Sunday of a Venezuelan airliner in Maracaibo, Venezuela, contained the names of a prominent Norfolk building contractor and his wife.

The victims were identified as Kenneth and Sharon Nelson of Norfolk, Neb.

The passport office in Seattle, Wash., confirmed that the couple listed their address as 810 So. Sixth St. in Norfolk. That is the address of the Nelsons, who had been vacationing in South America for a month.

Mrs. Ervin Nelson of Norfolk said her son and his wife, slated to return to Omaha Sunday night, were not on the plane she met in Omaha.

The elder Mrs. Nelson said she had been staying with the Nelson's three children, Mark, 15, Gina, 11, and Jami, 8.

Nelson was president in 1967 of the Nebraska Home Builders Association.

Earlier passenger lists had identified an Anthony Oates as being from Nebraska, but later lists identified Oates as a resident of Evansville, Ind.

RICHARD F. ARGUELLO

Lincolnite Is Charged In Slayings

A 24-year-old Lincoln man was charged Monday with two counts of first degree murder in connection with the fatal stabbings of his wife and three-year-old daughter.

Richard F. Arguello, of 1407 No. 26th, stood calmly before Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum as the charges were read to him charging him with feloniously, purposely and of his own deliberate and premeditated malice killing his wife, Joyce Frieda and daughter, Shawn Marie.

He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to District Court for further disposition.

Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas said Monday he had not yet received reports of the autopsies performed on the two victims.

According to police, Arguello was arrested early Saturday morning at the scene where Mrs. Arguello apparently died of stab wounds. The child, who was severely slashed across the stomach, died later at a local hospital.

EVENTS IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The major accomplishment of this Legislature could be in the field of highway planning. The State Department of Roads has unveiled a $1.3 billion, 20-year construction program to upgrade the state's highway system to adequate standards.

While the program is an ambitious one, it is not at all out of reason or beyond what might be expected of people in the financial end of things. It represents a jump in annual spending from $50 million to $65 million, with the increase at the mercy of the Unicameral.

Senators could select a number of ways of financing but they have a money package before them that contains a great deal of merit. It includes a modest increase in the gas tax and auto registration fee.

Additionally, senators will be asked to approve of a bond program of approximately $20 million as an essential ingredient for completion of the Interstate. Without this, Nebraska would not meet the completion deadlines and would actually lose federal funds in the process.

The 20-year program includes a system of freeways and expressways in addition to the Interstate. These would be four-lane roads in some cases and two-lane roads built for easy conversion to a four-lane facility.

Significantly, the program does not include any state highway work on county or municipal extensions of the primary road system. This is significant because it is a measure of the conservative nature of the program.

Many more billions could be added to the program if this work within cities and counties were included. Thus, the proposal outlined is not a gold-plated plan.

Further evidence of this is seen in findings on the adequacy of the existing highway system. Two years ago, a consulting firm reported that 4,284 miles of the present 9,723 state highway system were inadequate on a scientific rating basis.

Today, the same standards show 5,449 miles or 59 per cent of the entire system to be inadequate. It is estimated that with current levels of spending, another 4,050 miles of the system will become inadequate within the next 12 years.

Obviously, the state is losing ground at the present rate of spending. It cannot keep up, with present revenues, with the increasing number of vehicles and the speeds at which they travel.

And this is to say nothing of the narrow roads, curves, hills, bad intersections and rough paving that are the cause of many accidents throughout the year. When it comes to accident prevention, the condition of roads is probably of Number One importance.

People still cause accidents but bad roads make a fatality out of what might otherwise have been a close call.

★

State Engineer Marvin Nuernberger summed up our feeling on the proposed 20-year program when he said:

"It is not so much a question of what this planning will project into monetary requirements over a span of years, but can Nebraska afford to be without adequate highways, today and tomorrow, whatever the cost?"

With the emphasis there is today on transportation in all aspects of our economy, we don't believe the state can afford to slip further and further behind in its highway construction.

The program that has been presented by the Department of Roads is realistic in both its physical elements and its financial requirements. The Legislature is urged to provide the funds by which this program can be implemented.

Federal City College Needs Morse's Help

WASHINGTON — The only thing that can save the Federal City College from being a tragic failure is to persuade former Sen. Wayne Morse, a founder of the college, to become its president.

Morse, who took seriously his job on the District of Columbia Committee when Sen. Lyndon Johnson demoted him to that unpopular committee, helped conceive the Federal City College as a means of educating young Negroes.

In the last decade, Washington has become nearly 60 per cent Negro, and much of its younger generation has lacked qualifications to enter the top universities in the capital. So the Federal City College was established on the pattern of community colleges of New York, California and other states.

So far, however, the college has been nothing short of a catastrophe. Its weak president, Frank Farner, a Morse recommendation from Oregon, lacked experience in handling either Negroes or big city problems. He surrendered authority to the faculty, which proceeded to adopt a self-perpetuation resolution that they could not be fired. The recommended curriculum includes stick fighting, karate and so much emphasis on black studies that 40 per cent of the college would be devoted to semi-segregationist courses.

Obviously this will not train young Negroes to play a leadership role in the nation's capital.

In addition, there are complaints that more faculty members than students play hookey from classes.

Sen. Morse, defeated by a slender margin last November, is co-author of the historic education bills passed by the Johnson administration. He is former dean of the University of Oregon Law School and one of the earliest crusaders for civil rights.

☆ ☆ ☆

A couple of years ago, most politicos wouldn't have given much for Sen. George McGovern's re-election chances in South Dakota. He was not only a Democrat but a dove in hawk country.

In contrast, Sen. Karl Mundt, the granite Republican from South Dakota, was considered as politically permanent as the stone carvings on Mt. Rushmore. Mundt has been a war hawk, a strong opponent of China's recognition, and a crusader against the ratification of treaties with Soviet Russia.

McGovern, a former history professor, came out early for resumption of diplomatic relations with Red China and is a firm believer in better US-USSR cooperation. As a result, everyone predicted trouble for George last November.

Instead he rolled up a solid majority, is now getting headlines probing hunger. It's now McGovern who looks as permanent as the carved faces on Mt. Rushmore.

Vice In Lincoln

A report issued last week by the Region II Crime Commission might have overemphasized the existence of vice in Lincoln while at the same time not giving credit due the Lincoln Police Department for keeping this city as clean as any city of its size in the country.

The report concerned itself solely with the Malone area, as some residents of that area have requested that the city give more attention to stopping activity at five "vice houses" allegedly doing business in the neighborhood. According to the report, the houses are variously engaged in prostitution, gambling and illegal liquor traffic. Whether or not there are other such vice havens here was not discussed.

We don't intend to soft-peddle the existence of illegal activities—in fact we haven't even had a chance to, because of the generally good character of the city and the efficiency of its law-enforcement—but in the aftermath of the crime commission meeting last week, it might have seemed to some that Lincoln is rife with vice and that officials are closing their eyes to untoward conduct.

This is simply not true. It can be noted that some of the activity discussed in the report—and it doesn't stop at the boundaries of the Malone area—is about as sinful as Ed's Friday night poker party. As to prostitution and the illegal sale of liquor, there has been plenty of police activity when needed if people would look at the record.

There have been raids, there have been arrests, prosecution and convictions. As in any city's legal system, there have been dismissals because of lack of evidence. There is a full-time vice detail working in this city and, accepting the fact that constant surveillance of a given haunt is impossible because of workload, the detail is on its toes and anyone who thinks he can openly flout the law in Lincoln and not suffer the consequences had better think again.

It Costs To Keep Up

If the "Joneses" live moderately, it takes a hefty figure to keep up with them. The federal Labor Department reports that a moderate standard of living now requires an annual income of $9,570 for a family of four.

The figure does not represent the average or typical family because, in the department's view, there is no such thing. The fact is that everyone is different and the values of no two people are alike in all respects.

Some people may argue with the $9,570 figure but it should not be far off the mark. Whether everyone likes it or not, the standard of living today is not what it used to be.

Home-ownership today is considered routine while it was quite an accomplishment in past generations. Maybe when you grew up, the family had no automobile but there are mighty few families in that category today. About the only ones without an auto today are those too old to drive one.

Television and many of the modern home appliances of today are quite a contrast, too, to years gone by but they all are an integral part of the environment in which we live. It may seem like a lot of luxury and convenience, perhaps a lot of unnecessary expense, but who would be willing to give up all these things?

The U.S. standard of living has gone far beyond the essentials of life but it has done so at the insistence of the people themselves. The advance has created a lot of problems but no one looks for a solution in things as they used to be.

Nixon Decision On ABM Dubbed Political; Doubts Stir On Approach To Larger Matters

WASHINGTON — The control of military arms is undoubtedly the most important political question in the world today, for the arms race devours the money and influences all other questions of poverty, race, jobs and housing, both in the United States and abroad.

This was why there was such intense interest in what President Nixon would do about putting six or seven billion dollars into an anti-ballistic missile system. Would he see and face the presiding issue of world politics, or evade it? The answer is fairly clear: He evaded it.

He dealt with it politically and nationally, and within this frame he was not only effective but brilliant. He did not reverse the Johnson administration's decision to build an anti-ballistic missile system, but modified it. He moved it out of the cities, where every missile site would have been a center of student demonstrations, to military bases in Montana and North Dakota, where students and demonstrations are less visible and less popular.

In short, he confused and disarmed his critics with a mystifying clarification of his policy, but he didn't really deal with the major issue of disarmament. Like President Johnson, he dealt with the politics of the problem, but not with the problem. For students of domestic politics, public relations and bedside manners, President Nixon's press conference on the ABM was a fascinating performance, but it was a tactic and not a policy, and it reduced the great issue of world arms control to a national political controversy over the President's techniques.

Washington is an intensely personal and political city. At the beginning of a new administration, it is more interested in the character and personality of the new president than in his policies. It watches him under pressure to see whether he will be bold enough to take a different course — to deal with the realities instead of the politics of life — or merely modify the old courses with a different style. On the ABM issue, Nixon obviously followed the traditional political pattern.

This has worried watchful people in the capital. They are confused about what to do about the ABM and can see the argument for and against Nixon's compromise, but they are asking some fundamental questions.

If the President decides to go along with the powers at the Pentagon and Congress who want a controversial ABM system, despite its cost, what will he do about the much more difficult question of making peace in Vietnam against the opposition of these same forces on Capitol Hill and at the Pentagon?

The argument of President Nixon's aides about this is very interesting. They say that the really major question for President Nixon is not the anti-ballistic missile, but Vietnam. They say they are sorry that the ABM had to be Nixon's first big decision, for on the ABM he seems to be compromising, whereas on Vietnam, they insist, he will really be bold and will force a change of policy by the end of the year, which will stop the killing and end the war one way or the other.

This may be true. The public posture of amiability and compromise with everybody, which President Nixon has dramatized, may actually be a cover for a policy which will deal with the really big questions of arms control, peace in Vietnam and a new policy and new priorities for the American cities. But very few people in Washington see this as the future of the Nixon administration at the present time.

The ABM decision has convinced most observers here that President Nixon is going to see the world in domestic political terms, that he is going to rely on good manners, good public relations, and good luck to bring about fundamental changes at home and abroad, but the most thoughtful people have their doubts.

They are not particularly concerned about Nixon's decision to go ahead in the U.S. with the ABM but they are concerned about him. For the really big questions in the world — arms control, ending the war, race and poverty — are radical and even desperate problems, requiring bold and radical policies, and they are worried because Nixon's first big decision indicated, not a bold or a philosophic approach to his problems, but a narrow, political, tactical and public relations view of the world.

Four Cases

Lincoln, Neb.

What has happened to justice in our land? What has happened to the concept that a man is innocent under law until proven guilty? Is it wrong to think that a man is protected by the law rather than a victim of it? It appears so.

I would like to call attention to four recent legal cases in which I believe justice has not been served and where individuals have been convicted without sufficient evidence.

First and foremost is the Thomas Davis murder case in Grand Island. If reports are at all accurate, it appears that there was not evidence sufficient to convict Mr. Davis of the murder of his wife. The prosecution used as motive for the murder the recent purchase of life insurance by the Davises, but testimony showed that Mrs. Davis, not Mr. Davis, purchased the insurance. Also a possible motive might have been the extra-marital activities of both the Davises, but these seem not to have been recent developments and from testimony given do not seem to have been of sufficient importance to either partner to be a motive for murder. The jury seems to have completely ignored the testimony of Davis's mother and daughter that he was in Lincoln on the night of the murder. It seems to me that Mr. Davis has been tried and convicted by public opinion not so much for murdering his wife as for outraging society with his sexual activities. This is indeed strange when the kind of activity of which Mr. Davis is guilty is so successfully and profitably marketed in our theaters and on television. I wonder if perhaps he is our scapegoat for our own guilt feelings about sexual infidelity.

Another case which I feel shows the miscarriage of justice is the Steve Abbott case concerning conscientious objection to military service. The Selective Service Board in the trial was shown to be prejudiced in its record-keeping and in its selection. Nevertheless, Judge Van Pelt chose to uphold the board and its action and the jury was left no choice but to find Abbott guilty for not stepping forward for induction.

The third and fourth cases which I believe illustrate the injustice that confronts our country are the Thomas Alvarez murder case and the James Earl Ray murder case. Alvarez has been sentenced to death in the electric chair for a crime he has confessed whereas Ray has been sentenced to 99 years in prison which will undoubtedly be reduced to 30 for the same type of crime but one resulting in far wider consequences than the Alvarez crime. The difference seems to lie in the fact that Alvarez is a member of a minority group whereas Ray's victim was a member of a minority.

I am appalled and frightened both for the individuals involved and for the implications these cases have for our society. If we no longer have protection and justice under the law, what freedom do we have?

Right To Drink

Lincoln, Neb.

Our so-called civilized and talented men of the city, state or federal governments sound very stupid to me when they step down on the dope-user and then give 20-year-old's the right to drink. It's like going from the frying-pan into the fire.

A lot of our older generation have had to quit drinking due to heart trouble or some other illness, but the next one has plenty to follow it up. Many children have grown up with beer in their refrigerators. The parents are to set the example. What more can we expect, whether they're 20 or 30? If they're bound to drink or take dope, they'll do it in spite of what it does to their health as long as they have what they consider their good time.

Now I'm afraid our police force will have more than they'll be able to handle.

I wholeheartedly agree with H. A. Swanson whose letter on the mourning dove appeared in the March 12 Star.

These birds are no bother, no trouble, and I love to hear them. They are not a game bird and I feel the same way about the quail. They are both the farmer's friend, in my book.

I also love their "Bob White" sound and there should be a law against shooting these feathered friends of ours.

Mr. Swanson has stated enough to prove that the mourning doves are useful, beautiful and song birds. So let's keep them from the gun-happy hunters who would eliminate them altogether.

Voting Age

Lincoln, Neb.

I just want to gripe some more!

Why not give those 20-year-old's the right to vote? If they are old enough to drink, why not vote? Why doesn't Governor Tiemann just invite Russia to step in and take over? If this last episode isn't what he is doing, a rose by any other name stinks.

Tax Burden

Lincoln, Neb.

Rev. E. L. Cochran's letter of March 10 regarding taxing churches seems to come under two listings. First, the small church is supported by its members and a minister who is a friend to every family. Perhaps that is not to be expected in this era of fast-moving life where everyone is too busy trying to keep his own head above water to help another. One feels that such a friendly little church supported by its congregation should be tax-exempt.

Then there is the matter of Dayton, Ohio, buying the Biltmore Hotel in 1952 for $3½ million, mostly credit, leasing it back to some of its previous owners for $250,000 annual rent, all tax-free. There are many other examples of why the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

John D. Rockefeller III stated that he does not have to pay taxes because of his large charitable donations but that he voluntarily gives to the government. His brother, governor of New York, believes everyone should pay some reasonable tax.

The Treasury reports in 1966 there were 155 persons earning over $200,000, including 21 who earned at least a million and paid no taxes, at all. These are the ones who could and should lighten the tax murder of the less fortunate.

Only One Tax

Lincoln, Neb.

Why not abolish all taxes, except one, by constitutional amendment? The one remaining would be an income tax. We could set a certain percentage of income tax to be levied and that would be the budget of the state. All the legislature would have to do would be to allocate that amount to the various governmental functions at all levels throughout the state.

A tax of income or increase could be filed every three years and payable annually, semi-annually or however determined. The state would know how much their tax budget would be.

My hat is off to Mrs. Essie Burden, candidate for City Council. No Horse Sense

Lincoln, Neb.

Vehicle inspection doesn't show horse sense, but I will say that they had better inspect the drivers' heads. When they weave across the street and run a curb, that is not the car's fault. And whatever might be o.k. with a car today could be out of order tomorrow.

Most of the accidents these days are caused by careless drivers, so drivers should be safety-checked to see if they are capable of driving a car out on the streets and highways.

Why all the fuss about drugs among teenagers? If they pass a law that teens are of legal age at 20, then they can buy and get whatever is on the market be sold, and the parents will have nothing to say.

So to me, none of this stuff shows much horse sense.

Medicaid Cut Not Possible Without Losing Federal Aid

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Richard Marvel Monday informed the Legislature that it may not cut back on the scope of medicaid services without running the danger of forfeiting federal funding support for the program.

Marvel, chairman of the Budget Committee, told lawmakers his discussions with officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington last week indicated that "we can't cut back under present regulations."

What the Legislature can do, he said, is to develop "adequate administrative controls" and then provide a checking procedure through survey teams to assure the state that its funds are being expended properly.

The medicaid program is now costing about $40 million a biennium in Nebraska. About 60% of the costs are met by the federal government.

Wipes Out Effect

Marvel's report wiped out the effect of a motion adopted by the Legislature last week which instructed the Budget Committee to prepare legislation to reduce the scope of medicaid services.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who offered the motion in an effort to force the issue to a head, said he is glad to hear the services may not be reduced.

Medicaid is now available in Nebraska only to recipients of public welfare.

Pending in the Legislature is a Carpenter bill, LB19, which would broaden the coverage to include other low-income Nebraskans.

Lawmakers agreed Monday to hold that bill on the floor pending the development of additional information by the Budget Committee.

Assistance Offered

Marvel said HEW offered the assistance of its regional staff personnel to help Nebraska develop administrative controls.

HEW personnel earlier helped set up the regulations for control of drug costs, Marvel noted.

Procedures can be developed in cooperation with hospitals, doctors and nursing homes to help control other costs, he said.

"We must insist on proper utilization of these facilities," Marvel said.

"But there is no good to be gained in kidding ourselves that we can cut back on these services."

Requested Funds

Marvel said both the Department of Health and the Department of Public Welfare have requested funds in their next budgets to finance utilization teams.

The cost would be about $100,000 to $150,000, he estimated.

Carpenter suggested the Budget Committee present an emergency appropriations bill at the earliest possible date "so we can get this show on the road."

In the meantime, he said, he has legislation pending which would provide state aid to nursing schools to help educate more registered nurses, and he believes junior colleges should begin educating practical nurses.

"People in nursing homes are just waiting to die," Carpenter noted.

"Those are the last days of a human life, and all we ever seem to be concerned with is how cheaply we can do it."

Law Enforcement Academy Proposed In New Measure

By United Press International

A bill to set up a law enforcement training academy in Nebraska and require all peace officers in the state to take training there was introduced in the Legislature Monday.

The bill, LB1346, was introduced at the request of Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann by Lincoln Sen. Harold D. Simpson and Sen. Bill K. Bloom of Omaha, who is a member of the Omaha police force.

Also introduced was a lengthy bill, LB1345, to revamp the State Investment Council. The two bills brought to 1,346 the number introduced thus far this session.

The proposed law enforcement academy would be under the supervision of the Governor's Crime Commission. The commission would be aided in its administration of the school by an advisory council made up of five peace officers and a commission member.

Any person elected or appointed to a law enforcement position after Jan. 1, 1972, would be required to finish a training course at the school within one year or forfeit his job.

Also after that date, no one would be allowed to be promoted in any state, county or local law enforcement organization without a certificate from the school saying he had completed successfully the courses there.

The advisory council, besides one commission member, would be made up of one police officer from Omaha or Lincoln, one police officer from a first class city, one county sheriff and one State Patrol member.

Bills introduced in the Legislature Monday:

LB1345 (For the governor, by Banking Committee)—Rewriting state law providing for the Nebraska Investment Council.

LB1346 (For the governor, by Simpson, Bloom, Carpenter)—Creating Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center, and creating a Police Standards Advisory Council.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

All Parents Should Make Plans Not To Live With Their Children

By ROBERT PETERSON

We should vow we'll never live with our children. If we make this vow early, incorporate it into our thinking, and plan our finances in such a way as to permit us to stick to it, we'll find it easier to chart the course of our retirement years.

This subject deserves discussion for it touches a situation which most children and parents must eventually face.

Children who harbor a natural affection for their parents are tempted to say, "Come live with us." But parental love thrives best in an atmosphere of underexposure, When you're rubbing shoulders month after month with an older mother or father, the warm, loving relationship which should exist between parents and grown children often deteriorates into one of grudging toleration.

A woman has written me that in a weak moment following marriage she and her husband invited her widowed mother to come live with them. "That was 20 years ago," she says. "All these years our family life has been subtly disrupted, for mother is a woman with very definite ideas.

"She didn't mean to, but she couldn't keep from imposing her views on us. She was kind to our two sons, but they were always a little frightened of her and sensed that they didn't quite meet her standards. And we could never go anywhere without taking her along. We didn't mind this but she always wanted to go home before anyone else was ready.

"She had a bad hip and needed help in dressing and going up the stairs—services we were glad to provide but which meant we could never leave her very long by herself. Whenever we suggested she might be better off in a nearby nursing home, which she could afford, she would reprimand us for wanting to turn her out."

The writer went on to say that she and her husband decided to take their first vacation in years—a motor trip through Mexico — so they were firm for a change and told the 84-year-old mother that they were placing her for six weeks in a local residence for older people.

"To our surprise, mother likes the residence so much she's decided to stay. We look in on her once or twice a week and I'm beginning to feel again the warm, natural love which a daughter should feel for her mother—something which was unhappily stifled all the years she was a permanent guest in our home."

There are, of course, some older parents who reside very harmoniously with their children. But psychologists are generally agreed that's far wiser for people to plan their lives in such a way as to retain domiciliary independence.

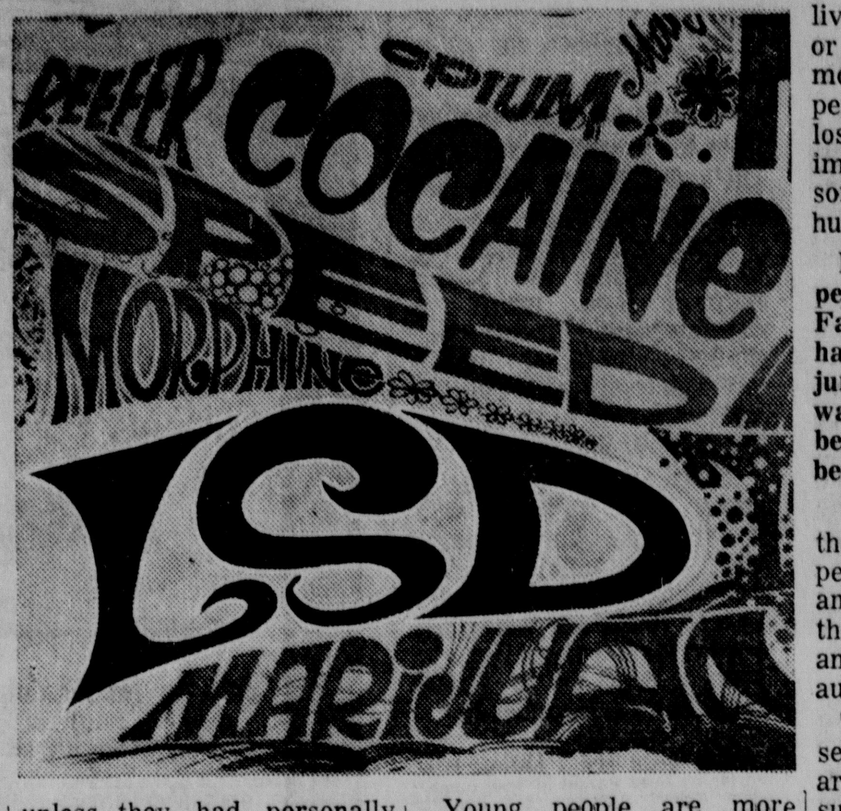
SAFEGUARDING YOUR TEEN-AGER AGAINST DRUGS . . .

Federal Law Forbids Marijuana



(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series by a prize-winning science writer who provides parents with background on the narcotics and drug situation and suggests ways for them to help guard their children against its ill effects.)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

One indisputable fact every teen-ager should know about marijuana is that it's against the law.

Under federal statutes, mere possession of the drug for personal use is a felony. Conviction can mean two to 10 years in prison, loss of civil rights and a criminal record that will dog the defendant for the rest of his life.

Some state laws are even more severe.

(In Nebraska, possession of marijuana can bring a fine of up to $5,000 and a prison sentence of two to 20 years, the penalty depending on whether the conviction is on first, second or third offense. The law makes a prison sentence mandatory.)

Recently, federal law was changed imposing stiff penalties for simply having LSD on one's person, or for possessing pep pills, barbiturates or tranquilizers unless they had personally been prescribed. Laws governing illegal manufacture, sale and distribution of various mind-influencing drugs also were made more severe.

How many youths are getting into health trouble through mind drug use isn't known. (Abuse of alcohol, which affects the brain, has resulted in six million alcoholics.)

Young people are more easily harmed than their elders by hallucinogenic and other drugs, partly because they have "a yet uncrystallized system of personality," a psychiatrist says.

"The kids who shouldn't use drugs are the ones most likely to do so and to become hurt," says Dr. Martin D. Kleber, Yale psychiatrist.

"It's possible you can use some drug and be one of the seven or eight out of 10 who won't get hurt. But do you know whether you won't be the odd man out? With LSD, you don't know but what one trip might cause damage," he adds.

While most people who smoke pot occasionally do so with no apparent harm, physicians have reported some instances of bad reactions, such as "having the horrors" for several hours afterward.

Impairs Judgment

Pot is insidious because it creates a false sense of well-being due to impairment of critical judgment, says Dr. Abraham Wikler, University of Kentucky psychiatrist. Marijuana and LSD make it possible to avoid problems, to evade reality, he says, but "real life requires critical judgment."

"We don't know the answers to questions about the long-term use of marijuana," says Dr. John C. Ball, sociologist formerly with the U.S. Public Health Service's Addiction Research Center in Lexington, Ky., and now at Temple University. "We don't have good information on college students who use it daily for four years or so."

The health casualty rate from LSD is far higher and more apparent than from marijuana. Bad trips or freak-outs have sent a small parade of youths to hospitals with panic reactions, or with psychotic episodes that last days, weeks or months.

At New York City's Bellevue Hospital, more than 130 patients were treated for LSD-induced psychoses in an 18-month period, says Dr. Donald B. Louira, president of the New York State Council on Drug Addiction. Even after treatment, one-sixth of them were not sent home, but on to other institutions for more prolonged treatment.

Similar figures are reported by medical groups in other areas of the country.

Curiously, some LSD users have "flashbacks"—they relive a former LSD trip, good or bad, weeks or many months later. When this happens, some wonder if they are losing their minds. This may imply that LSD can set off some chronic process in the human brain.

LSD has driven a few persons to intentional suicide. Fantasies inspired with LSD have led others to death by jumping out windows or walking on highways in the belief they could fly, or had become invisible.

"The trouble with LSD is that once they've taken it, people are not objective anymore — they don't see themselves accurately anymore," says one drug authority.

The claim that LSD sessions lead to creativity in art, music or writing is not supported by most objective observers. Many say the work produced during a session is shoddy, or that after a trip the person doesn't produce anything from the visions and insights prompted by the drug.

Enthusiasm Cooled

Enthusiasm for LSD has cooled since scientific reports began appearing that the drug may damage a person's chromosomes — the carriers of hereditary traits.

This could mean that people who use or have used LSD might produce babies with congenital defects, although there is no proof yet that LSD actually does have such effects.

Other mind drugs are not always as safe as devotees may picture them.

Morning glory seeds have caused psychotic reactions, delirium, and anxiety in some young persons. Peyote has been blamed for or associated with anxiety and other reactions.

Barbiturates and sedatives cause numerous deaths, especially when mixed with other drugs or with alcohol, or because the person forgets how much of the drug he has already taken.

And some people become psychologically dependent upon pep pills to start out each day, in college, or in their careers. Large doses used to stay awake can induce dangerous delusions, as in one truck driver who thought someone was chasing him with a gun. He wrecked his truck.

(Tomorrow: What parents can do about mind drugs.)

Kidnaping And Murder Penalty Bills Are Ok'd

By Associated Press

A pair of bills clarifying the authority of courts to find defendants guilty of murder or kidnaping and prescribe a death sentence — without jury trial — were passed on final reading in the State Legislature Monday.

Both bills were sponsored by Sen. Fred W. Carstens, a Beatrice lawyer who also heads the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee.

Present Nebraska law holds that kidnaping is punishable by life imprisonment or death, but a jury must fix the penalty.

LB700, approved 41-0 Monday, provides that a judge may fix the punishment upon a plea of guilty or after a finding of guilt by the court, sitting without a jury.

LB701, approved 43-0, permits a murder defendant to be tried by the court without a jury and to be sentenced to death on a finding of guilt by the judge.

Both bills carried the emergency clause and become law on the governor's signature.

Elected ETV Unit Advanced

By Associated Press

Nebraska legislators split sharply Monday over whether members of the state's Educational Television Commission should be elected or appointed, but finally gave 23-16 first round approval to a bill providing for election of the commissioners.

At present, the ETV Commission has 13 appointive members, most of them educators. Included by virtue of their positions are the chancellor of the University of Nebraska and the state education commissioner.

Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter's LB7 calls for a nine-member commission, three members elected from each of the state's three congressional districts.

Members of the Education Committee, when they sent the bill to the floor on a 5-0 vote with three absententions, said they were influenced by reports of absenteeism at ETV Commission meetings.

Sen. Carpenter said Nebraska currently has one of the finest ETV networks among the 50 states, but "by default" it is being operated by professional educators.

Programming is important, because it is an "anything goes" philosophy that has helped bring the United States to the "moral mess" in which it finds itself, Carpenter said.

"I've seen programs on ETV that should not be allowed to be shown in a doghouse," Carpenter said.

Nearly a dozen floor speeches for and against the bill were delivered.

Another of Carpenter's ETV bills, LB62, authorizing the ETV Commission to coordinate programming, was advanced from general file on a 29-0 vote.

But another ETV measure, LB63, authorizing the ETV Commission to expend funds to promote its programs, was held for revision.

The Education Committee proposed an amendment to LB63 which would, in effect, limit the commission to placing program information in media which carry TV listings.

Endorsed 30-0 on general file was North Platte Sen. Ellen Craft's LB292, which prohibits a municipality from holding a liquor-by-the-drink election oftener than once each two years.

Other bills given first round approval, with vote:

—LB305, permitting a serviceman's family which has been out of the state to renew a driver's license without reexamination. 34-0.

—LB396, changing the method of distributing railroad car taxes. 28-0.

—LB402, requiring tax commissioner's office rather than Board of Equalization and assessment to levy the tax on air transportation carriers. 30-0.

Council OKs Placing Amendment On Ballot

The City Council Monday approved placing on the May 6 election ballot a charter amendment which would remove the requirement that the mayor's salary be higher than the salary of any department head.

Council members, however, decided against a recommendation by the Charter Revision Committee that the mayor's salary remain unchanged during a term of office.

The revision commitee had approved one amendment that would have allowed the council to review the salary annually. But the committee reconsidered that proposal and instead recommended against an annual review.

"I don't think the mayor's salary should be tied down for four years," Councilman Bill Davidson said Monday.

Unforseen Events

Several council members also said that unforseen events could occur during a year making a higher salary necessary.

All agreed that the city should be able to hire specialists at a salary higher than the mayor's salary.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, who gets $17,325 a year, said he also agrees that there is a case for hiring a specialist at a salary more than he receives.

The League of Women Voters has opposed the proposed amendment, contending that it wil downgrade the role and prestige of the mayor if other administrative officials receive a higher salary.

Too Difficult

Proponents of the amendment indicated the present charter provision has made it too difficult to hire specialists and that the new amendment would make it possible to hire the specialists at competitive wages.

Keith Knudsen, chairman of the Charter Revision Committee, told council members the committee was not able to recommend at this time charter amendments regarding the Lincoln Electric System and Lincoln General Hsopital.

Knudsen said the committee had too many questions to resolve in such a short time that the group wanted to study the situations further.

"There just was not enough time to clear up the differences that existed," he said.

Ready In Fall

Knudsen said the committee might have answers ready this fall as to acceptable charter amendments.

"This is our first look at fragmentation of government," he noted.

The Power Advisory Board had proposed an amendment which would set up a board with control over the operation and administration of the electric system.

The charter amendment involving the hospital board would permit the council to define the duties of the governing board of the hospital and establish a department director within the executive framework of the city's government.

'Urgency'

Councilman Ervin Peterson indicated he had hoped the electric system amendment could have been placed on this year's ballot because of the "urgency" of the situation.

Councilman Bill Davidson, however, disagreed and said he would reveal in the near future an alternative plan that would be more acceptable to the public.

Peterson said he could see no reason for delay since the matter had been studied by the Power Advisory Board and the council.

Council members also took the following actions:

HAL HASSELBALCH

Hasselbalch Enters Race

A former assistant city attorney filed Monday afternoon for election to the City Council.

Hal Hasselbalch, 36, of 4705 South St., said in announcing his candiacy that he would like to dampen old intra-city rivalries by attempting to represent the entire public.

"Too many candidates who have filed to date have indicated they desire to represent a certain sector of Lincoln's population. I think this (sector representation) is a very unhealthy situation for the city," Hasselbalch said.

He said he thinks a councilman should listen to all persons who are interested in an issue and then make the decision that the councilman thinks is best for the city as a whole.

"This pushing and pulling between sections of the city is irrelevant," he said.

Hasselbalch said that the fact the council spends 60% of its time on zoning matters indicates something is wrong with the zoning system".

"There is a tendancy to blame the planning department for all snags citizens encounter on zoning matters. However the responsiblity rests with the council which designs the zoning framework in the first place and not with the administrators who try to interpret the ordinances," he said.

He has been in private law practice for the past six years since leaving the city legal department.

Hasselbalch is a member of the Jacobins Club, Danish Brotherhood, Nebraska Bar Association and the YMCA.

He is married and has four children.

JOHN P. RIGGS

Riggs Files For Council

John P. Riggs, 28, of 1718 Pepper Ave. filed Monday as a candidate for City Council in the April primary election.

Riggs said he is interested in becoming a councilman because "ordinary citizens, like myself, should take more interest in government."

He said a more liberal view on zoning is needed in Lincoln and that there is a definite need for two more fire stations.

A pressman with Mid America Web Press Inc., he is a member of the Lithographers Photoengraving International Union (LPIU)

"I can assure the voters I will carefully scrutinize every budget request of every deparment of city government," he said.

Leupold indicated that he was not stating there has been waste in the past.

"I know that with the increasing cost of government and the big increase in taxes that elected officials will have to do their best to achieve economy and efficiency in government," he said.

Leupold has owned and operated a painting contracting business in Lincoln for 25 years.

He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Masons, Elks, Sesostris Temple, American Legion and the Second Baptist Church.

MERLE HALE

Hale Enters Council Test

Merle Hale, recently retired vice president and general manager of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co., filed Monday for election to the City Council.

Hale, 66, of 1915 D St., said he is interested particularly in past planning decisions, the Northeast Radial, and street improvements.

"I am, of course, interested in all aspects of our city government and want to see Lincoln progress and grow and become a better place to live for all of our citizens." Hale said.

Regarding planning decisions, the retired executive said an improvement in planning could be made, "keeping in mind the need to benefit the city as a whole."

"I am concerned about the Northeast Radial. This has been delayed apparently to give the University of Nebraska time to firm up its expansion plans," Hale said.

He said that "now that these plans have been pretty well settled, I think we should proceed without delay on the radial in order to give the citizens of northeast Lincoln better access to the core area.

Hale said after filing Monday that he believes too many so-called street improvements have been accomplished on a makeshift basis and that "we are paying the penalty this spring through the terrible condition of our streets."

A native of Lincoln, he has been active in civic and fraternal affairs.

GERRY BOWEN

Bowen Seeks Council Seat

A real estate and insurance agent, Gerry Bowen, 49, of 1201 So. 40th, filed Monday as a candidate for the City Council in the April primary.

Bowen, owner of Bowen Realty and Insurance Co., said he is very much interested in the youth of Lincoln and would work for the city's launching of a comprehensive study to see how present youth programs could be enhanced.

He is making his first attempt for public office.

Bowen said he would like Lincoln to become a model city for youth development.

"I would like to see broad-based programs which would get youths involved in activities rather than get into trouble with the law," he said.

A resident of Lincoln for 18 years, Bowen served as deputy city clerk while living in Beatrice during the 1940's.

He has a masters degree in school administration from the University of Nebraska and is a member of Calvary Lutheran Church.

He is married and has three children.

Vicar Praises Jazz Masses

Rome (AP) — The papal vicar for Rome came out Monday in favor of jazz masses in Roman Catholic churches and the use of any instrument but drums.

Angelo Cardinal dell'Acqua told a news conference that he had attended a modern music church service recently and was "very moved at the way the young people took part in the mass."

Council Eyed By Tetherow

James Tetherow, 27, of 325 No. 29th St., filed Monday for nomination to the City Council in the April primary.

Tetherow said the fact that none of the candidates represent his philosophy of government leads him to run for public office.

"I am a wage earner who has needs and views that differ from those of the self-employed businessman and the company executive," he said.

Tetherow said he would represent the needs of the wage earner in Lincoln who receives a small income.

He is a member of Grace United Methodist Church and is a steward on the church's administrative board and also a member of its education commission.

City Hall May Be Vacant By Week's End, Official Says

The old City Hall building may be vacant by the end of this week.

W. Wayne Harvey, city purchasing agent and coordinator of the city's move into the new County-City Building, said Monday the movers are nearly a week ahead of schedule.

"We could not have had it better in view of the efficiency of the movers in getting departments transferred from one building to the other," Harvey said.

Harvey said the second floor offices of the finance department, mayor, council secretary, city clerk, auditing and purchasing will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday.

"The second floor offices were scheduled to be moved on Thursday but some were moved on Monday and the remainder will be moved Tuesday," he said.

Harvey added that departments will still have to unpack after they get into their new quarters.

Robert Obering, public works director, said his office would be closed Tuesday and possibly Wednesday.

Harvey said the revised schedule indicates that the inspection, law and personnel offices will be moved on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday.

ART

—Mount show

BY JOHN CANADAY
(c) New York Times Service

New York — William Sidney Mount, who lived a happy life from 1807 to 1868, was never a man to believe that the expulsion from the Garden of Eden was a tragedy for Adam and Eve. Life outside that enclave, he once said, had better things to offer, and he expressed admiration for our ancestors' foresight in leaving the place.

But he did not extend his own range very far. Rejecting the offers of patrons who wanted to send him to Europe, he even avoided New York City after a successful start there in his twenties. He spent most of his mature life — the last 32 years — on rural Long Island, which combined some of the pleasant features of the earlier garden with a larger population where he could find cronies interested in swapping good stories and attending country dances.

He built himself a traveling studio, horse-drawn, in which he rambled about the countryside and villages sketching the subjects that, translated into paintings, made him their American genre artist.

The Mount exhibition now at the Whitney Museum will, I am sure, strike many people as undiluted puree of corn, and in truth it would be easiest, and most amusing, to review the show in a spirit of affectionate condescension embellished by further tales about the artist's picturesque nature as embellishment. But this would be an unpardonable surrender to a defect in our vision just now by which, although it is beginning to clear up, we still regard pictorial storytelling as an esthetic sin so basic that no attendant virtues can atone for it.

In the instances where he can be called truly corny (and there are enough of them), Mount does break the first rule of good genre painting: he presents the characters in his pictorial anecdotes not as real people but as actors costumed for the part and conscious of ourselves as audience. But in a wonderful picture such as "Eel Spearing at Setauket" (on loan from the New York Historical Association, Cooperstown), we have a pictorial record of a certain activity in a certain place observed with such breadth that even while its specific subject rings true the scene takes on something like universal reference.

In his excellent catalogue of the exhibition, where he draws on quantities of unpublished Mount papers, Alfred Frankenstein tells that in "The Banjo Player", Mount intended to fill the empty, shadowy space behind the lonely figure in the barn with other figures dancing, but never completed the picture. This seems to be true (the picture was never signed and, for a Mount, it is unpolished in details) and would leave use with one of mount's three or four finest paintings as half an accident. It would be pleasant to think that Mount deliberately stopped the picture at this point even if he had not originally conceived it in this way, but to believe this would take a bit of doing. Mount was quite conscious of the demands of his market and American collectors at that time wanted their money's worth in meticulous rendering.

But over-all he grew amazingly, and it is the record of this growth that should make the Whitney show a revelation even for anyone who thinks he is familiar with the bulk of Mount's work.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

One tends to react mchanically to some situations because they seem so entirely similar to others encountered before. However, this tendency to play in accordance with previous habit may prove costly at times, which is precisely what happened to South in this deal.

West led a club, South won with the queen, entered dummy with a trump, and led a heart to the jack, which lost to the queen.

West made the best defensive return of a trump. Declarer won in dummy and led another heart, this time losing the king to the ace. When West then led a third round of trumps, South was at the end of his rope. He later lost a diamond and a heart to go down one.

The odd part of the hand is that South would surely have made the contract had he been dealt three little hearts instead of the K-J-x.

Let's suppose South had held three baby hearts and got the same club lead. In that case, after winning the club, he would almost certainly have returned a heart, from his hand in order to prepare for a heart ruff in dummy and in that way manufacture his tenth trick.

But the presence of the K-J-5 of hearts obviously created a blind spot and caused declarer to use up a valuable trump in dummy in order to lead a heart toward his hand. This opened the gate for additional trump leads by West and eventually cost South the contract.

Of course it is extremely rare for a declarer to lead away from the K-J-5 toward dummy's 6-2, but if that is the best way to handle this combination in a particular deal, declarer should certainly do so. The best way of playing a suit does not necessarily coincide with the best way of playing a hand.

New York Needs More Room For Ballet

BY CLIVE BARNES
(c) New York Times Service

New York — Last weekend — or a fair part of it. — I spent in Hicksville, Long Island. There, in a high school auditorium, I saw a couple of performances by American Ballet Theater.

The auditorium was agreeable if Spartan and the stage, at the very least, viable. It was not possible to hang scenery and the lighting board was obviously not intended to accommodate the special needs of professional theater.

Yet as auditoriums go, it was a beauty. I remember seeing Ballet Theater a couple of seasons back in a high school auditorium that made me fear for the company's young lives, and despair for its reputation.

But the company put on a fine show. One of Ballet Theater's great virtues is a dear old-fashioned show-biz gallantry that so often pulls it through all manner of adversity.

On Long Island the company offered two completely different programs, both well danced and cleanly presented. The orchestral playing under Jaime Leon was good, and the entire presentation, apart from the unfortunately missing sets, would not really have disgraced the Met. But I wonder whether this is the best use the United States can put Ballet Theater to?

Ballet theater, like every great company in the performing arts, needs a home. When the John F. Kennedy Center is completed in Washington, Ballet Theater will be one of the constituent companies. But it will appear there — at least at first — only eight weeks a year.

Moreover, however happy Ballet Theater is in Washington, it will still need regular exposure in New York, for New York is the dance capital of the world.

It is where the most sophisticated audience is, it is where the dance studios and the teachers are, and it is (God help us!) where the majority of the critics are. In short, New York is the only possible focus for American dance, as every company and every dancer know. Over last Christmas, American Ballet Theater gave a season at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. There is a possibility, as yet by no means definite, that the company will give a fall season in Brooklyn. Apart from this, I understand the company will not be appearing in New York during 1969.

It would like to play in Manhattan but it cannot find accommodation in either the New York State Theater or the Metropolitan Opera House.

This year there will have been more dance in New York than ever before. Through the enterprise of the Ford Foundation, modern dance has for the first time had a fair showing in New York — a season split between Manhattan and Brooklyn.

The Manhattan season at the Billy Rose Theater was most gratifying at the box-office — especially when we remember it was at this same theater earlier in the season that the excellent theater '69 repertory of plays by Beckett and Albee failed so tragically. In Brooklyn the season was less successful at the box-office.

The same pattern was repeated in classical ballet. Ballet theater was really successful in Brooklyn only when guest artists Cara Fracci and Erik Bruhn appeared. But in Manhattan, the City Center Joffrey Ballet is enjoying its most successful season to date and the Harkness Ballet played a good three weeks at the Music Box. Brooklyn still has to prove it can attract mass audiences.

ABBY: phony 'dad'

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my husband died and left me with two small sons, ages four and seven. At that time my husband's brother promised my boys he would be their "Daddy."

Well, "Daddy" has taken the boys to exactly ONE baseball game. I sent him a Father's Day card. ("To My Uncle") which he never even bothered to acknowledge. He ran in for a few minutes once last year at Christmas, to drop off a baseball glove for each of the boys.

His wife comes by nearly every day asking how the boys are "getting along." I told her my sons didn't need another mother, but they could sure use a father. She said she would share anything with me but her husband. I don't WANT her husband, I want my boys to have a father.

Please tell me how I can tell this whole family to drop dead in a nice way.

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: Write off this phony "Daddy" and look around for a real one. Your brother in-law is a heel, but you're spending far more time and energy hating him than he's worth.

DEAR ABBY: We have a friend who has many fine qualities. She has a heart as big as she is. If any one of us needs a favor, for instance, if we are called out of town for a funeral or something unexpected, she is the one who takes our children — and gladly. I can't begin to tell you all the nice things this woman has done, expecting nothing in return. But Abby, does she lie!

Like if you compliment her on her dress, she'll say she made it. And she doesn't own a machine and she can't sew a stitch. Furthermore one of us was with her when she bought it. Also she will serve canned, frozen or carried-in food, and she'll look you right in the eye and tell you she made it from scratch.

So, Dear Abby, what do you do about a friend who lies?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Nothing. You love her for her good qualities and skip the rest.

DEAR ABBY: You advised a mother to take her 10-year-old daughter and clear out because of the intimate kisses her husband was giving her. May I add "AMEN — and NOW!'

I happen to the victim of such a father, and I had no one to rescue me either. (I told my mother, but she called me a "liar.") Eventually the worst happened. That was a long time ago. My father is gone now, but I still have nightmares.

I hope that mother takes your advice before it's too late.

Fashions

So accustomed is the world to reading fashion stories from New York, London, Paris and Rome that a change of pace doubtless will be welcomed.

The fashion news this morning is from the Pacific Northwest, and here is what Linda Deutsch of the Associated Press, has to say:

Portland, Ore. — Up in this land of tall pines, high fashion once meant sturdy woolen jackets for the men who went up the mountains to chop trees.

Now the Pacific Northwest's fashion designers show that times have changed, but those sturdy wools still come in handy.

Pendleton Woolen Mills, which unveiled its fall collection of misses and junior fashions in an elegant evening show last Thursday, featured bright tartan plaid pants suits, tweed coats, plaid pants skirts, and even a variation on the old lumberjacket. It's called the River Coat — a bold red and black plaid coat with belt, big patch pockets and buttoned sleeves.

Another standout in the collection is the cape coat which returns in a flair of plaids, sometimes topped with a detachable hood. One red tartan cape is reversible with the other side in solid black.

The three-quarter length walking coat, always belted, is a staple of the collection. It is offered in dozens of colors and variations, worn over pants or a skirt for the dashing town and country look. Pants are all conservatively flared, many verging on a totally straight leg.

The classics that will never die are still shown — the gently fitted riding suit, the walking suit with peter pan collar and even the standard shirt dress. The company calls these its "money makers."

The new touch to most outfits is matching tarten plaid scarves and tom-o-shanter hats. They add a jaunty flair to a simple suit.

Men's outdoor fashions joined the fresh air showing late Friday afternoon. Jantzen's men's and boys' wear, exhibited at Kahneeta on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation, consisted of thick rib-knot sweaters.

The big news for men was the return of belted sweaters, which the Jantzen people call the "Camelot look."

Predominating colors were bright Indian blanket shades of red, corn yellow, ruby, interspersed with touches of the earth shades, brown and pewter.

For the less sports oirented male, there's a collection called "The Billionaires." These are lush velour shirts in bright strips, fleece-lined orlon sweat shirts and printed corduroy jeans — some of them even flowered.

A NEST OF NINNIES, by John Ashbury and James Schuyler

THE CHAIR, by Joel Lieber

The literary historians will have lots of explaining to do when they get around to this decade. The headlines are black with disaster; the novels are light with laughter. Large chunks of the nation are coming apart, but it's Joe Miller, not Jeremiah, who is recording the event.

Some of the humor may be dark-hued, but the response is bright and effervescent. There is probably more good spirits and fun-loving outrageousness in fiction these days than in any period since the turn of the Century. The fun is not to be equated with a lack of seriousness. It is neither weakness of intellect nor a withering of the emotions.

These so-called funny books are full of criticism. The comedy, in fact is in the criticism.

"A Nest of Ninnies" and "The Chair," though differing in many ways, are two more bits of evidence to support the general statement. The books are searching, disenchanted and scarcely respectful. But where "A Nest of Ninnies" is cool, wry and pointed, "The Chair" is fervent and energetic.

The former has a wonderful, sly and cutting way about it; the latter depends on exaggeration and overstatement.

If I prefer the John Ashberry and James Schuyler volume, it is mainly because they are dealing with a side of American life, little explored and done in a manner that envelopes its subject matter as an instrument does its melody.

"A Nest of Ninnies" tackles what might be called the bloodless Americans. They are found in urb and suburb but never in the bare places of the country. They are reasonably well educated and sufficiently well heeled not to worry about the next meal when they are broke. But their contact with people, events, even large aspects of American life is tenuous.

They are 150 per cent normal and solid citizens to boot: the Bushes, a brother and sister who live in an old house usually cold and dismal; the Bridgewaters, a family of four, the father, a doctor, the children finding themselves; the Kelsos, a doting mother and an equally doting son; assorted foreigners, Frenchmen and Italians who really know how to handle Americans. Alone and together, they visit each other, travel in Europe and the United States, return and settle down without much disturbing their essential innocence.

Ashberry, a poet and art critic, and Schuyler, a poet and novelist, have fashioned an unruffled, sec and witty style to describe them. It is sharp and straight-faced and dotted with enough provocative allusions to provide a running challenge to the reader. And I may be a copout to say so, but their lives seem to be the next best thing to retiring on full pay at age 50.

Lieber's man, Sidney Reuben Pfeiffer, D.D.S., is everything the others aren't: involved, wrought up, tempestuous. He lives in a small town, has (or had) a good practice and a fine family. But because he is naturally tactless and because he has supported causes the townpeople think are radical, he has earned their enmity.

They ruin him economically by staying away from his office, and they ruin his reputation by circulating the rumor that he did more than fill the molar cavities of a drugged and supine female patient.

The trouble is that Pfeiffer can't track down the author of the rumor or the girl to whom this was supposed to have happened. In a fit of frustration, he writes a letter to a newspaper denouncing the town and all in it and heads for New York so that he can explode in more sympathetic surroundings.

By the time he is through though, Pfeiffer has learned an unhappy truth: there's no high ground. Urban evil balances small-town prejudice. It is people, not landscape, that is the source of trouble.

Afternoon Party Is Bridal Courtesy

The approaching wedding of Miss Angeline Hoffman and Gayle Vance Nelson, which will be an event of Saturday, March 29, was the incentive for a bridal courtesy held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wayne Hertzler.

The guest of honor was presented a miscellaneous shower at the 4 o'clock to 6 o'clock party for which Mrs. Hertzler, her daughter, Miss Vicki Hertzler, Mrs. Gaylord Wiedman and her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Hoppe of Omaha, were hostesses.

From the left are Mrs. L. F. Hoffman, mother of the bride-elect; Miss Hoffman; her grandmother, Mrs. Stephen Freeouf of Wilber; Mrs. Hoppe; Miss Hertzler; Mrs. Lumir Qurecky of Wilber, aunt of the bride-to-be; Miss Sharon Hesson, Omaha; and Miss Hoffman's sister, Miss Jeanette Hoffman.

town talk

It occurred to us that it was about time the Slugfesters and their wives were returning home from Hawaii. The Slugfesters, in case anyone doesn't know, is a golf group (strictly stag) which does its golfing at the Lincoln Country Club. The wives, however, are included in the fun activity which is by no means infrequent — The trip to Hawaii, planned last summer for the end of winter, was one of those fun affairs.

All of this leads up to the fact that although one — or two — or three of the vacationing Slugfesters are home, the others are not — So we'll wait.

We do know, however, that Dr. and Mrs. Merritt C. Pedersen returned last Thursday from Burlingame, Calif. Dr. and Mrs. Pedersen had more than a casual incentive for their trip to the coast — They went to the wedding of their son, Donald M. Pedersen, and Linda Jones Thigpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Jones of Eureka, Calif., which took place on Monday, March 10, at the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church. At the 5:30 o'clock ceremony the bride was attended by Mrs. James Farquahr of Walnut Creek, Calif., and Dr. Harold E. Maude of Lincoln served his brother-in-law as best man.

Wedding Planned

A late March wedding date has been chosen by Miss Susan Pierce of Denver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Pierce, for her marriage to Lt. (jg) Donald R. Schafer of Virginia Beach, Va., the son of Mrs. Otto P. Schafer and the late Mr. Schafer.

The wedding will take place Saturday evening, March 29, and the 7:30 o'clock service will be solemnized at the Lutheran Student Chapel on the University of Nebraska campus.

For her honor attendant, Miss Pierce has named her sister, Mrs. Robert W. Tate of Austin, Tex. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Patricia Knapp and Miss Janet Stonington, both of Denver, and Mrs. Harry P. Gaylor will attend Miss Pierce as bridesmatron.

Serving his brother as best man will be Keith Schafer, and Lt. Schafer's brother, Dr. Norman Schafer of Denver, will be groomsman.

The bride-elect, who is a member of the faculty of the Denver Schools, will arrive in Lincoln on Tuesday, March 25, in time for several bridal courtesies planned in her honor.

Hanging Out Shorts

Hanging out some sports shorts while trying to bounce back from what annually is the toughest week in any sports year:

Isnt television staging one of the biggest holdups since the Brink's robbery when you consider the commercials they're selling with the paltry sum they pay the Nebraska School Activities Association for televising the Saturday finals of the state basketball tournament.

On type of the robbery, they also change the rules and the schedule, demanding two minute timeouts and forcing games to start as much as 30 minutes late.

What would the NSAA do if a newspaper could get the story in a certain edition?

Note to Dick Perry — Do you still think, after Colorado loses to Colorado State and Kansas is whacked soundly by Boston College, that Big Eight basketball was better than mediocre the past season?

If you think inflation has hit your food dollar, how about what has happened to land values in the south section of Houston where the Astrodome is located.

Ten years ago, before the Astrodome, you could buy an acre of land there for $22,000. Now it ranges from $147,000 to $220,000 per acre.

No Time To Quit

After Blacksburg was bruised, 172-12, by Ottumwa Walsh in an Iowa high school district basketball game, losing coach Jody Max said he had no intentions of quitting his job as Blacksburg coach.

"If I was going to quit, I would have quit the night we got beat, 140-38, by Twin Cedars," he allowed, "And that was on our home court."

To start your next bar argument, ask what school has the longest streak of consecutive winning seasons. The answer: Louisville has had 25 straight winning campaigns.

Looking For Something Different

If you're looking for something different, you might try the annual Death Valley Burro Flapjack Race.

Starting at the perimeter of a huge circle, 13 prospectors try to coax, cajole or carry their critters around a center post and return to their starting point where they have to unpack the burro, build a fire, mix and cook a pancake.

The first prospector to feed his animal the finished product is the winner. And to think that Raymond Francis Barry and yours truly got out of the Jackass business a year ago.

University of Texas at Arlington basketball coach Barry Dowd had a team plagued by injuries during a 5-11 season and noting that his wife is expecting a baby, he says, "the way things have been going, the kid will probably be born with a sprained ankle."

After a road victory, Oswego State's basketball team was presented a victory cake by a local restaurant owner before they began their trip home. Asked by the waitress to make a wish before cutting the cake, Oswego center Bob Simmons said, "I wish we had a bigger cake."

Baltimore Colts' linebacker Mike Curtis, known for his ferocity, tells in the current issue if Sport Magazine how he plans to handle writers who refer to him as an animal.

"I may go up to the next sports writer who asks me if I'm really an animal," he says, "and take a bite out of his arm."

PRESENT PRO SETUP BACKED

Committee Suggests Leagues Keep Identities

. . . AT PRO FOOTBALL MEETINGS

Palm Springs, Calif. (AP) — The Joint Committee on Alignment unanimously recommended Monday that the National and American football leagues retain their identities and the present setup once the pro football merger takes final effect in 1970.

After hearing the recommendations, owners of the 26 teams in the two leagues went into separate sessions and began discussing the problems they hope resolve before they end their joint winter meetings later this week.

"I can't say I'm optimisic. I have'nt heard enough private views," Commissioner Pete Rozelle told a news conference at the end of the first day of the meetings. "But I hope we'll reach an agreement this week. If not, we'll recess to another time and place."

The joint committee, made up of three owners from ecah league, listed four plans in their presentation to the joint session.

Two, the committee said, were not practical: 1, expand to 28 teams for 1970, reshuffle everyone and divide into four units of seven teams, and 2, extend the season past the 14 games the teams now play.

The third of the four plans is the one that interests at least three or four owners in the AFL. That would call for total realignment, two divisions of seven teams and two of six and elimination of the identity of the AFL.

The teams, under this plan, would operate as the National Football League.

Under the plan that was recommended, however, the identity of the AFL would be retained and a number of inter-league games would be played both before and during the season.

Rozelle said he and the two league presidents, Milt Woodard of the AFL and Arthur Modell of the NFL, also recommended this plan. There are various reasons, the commissioner said.

"We felt by 1970 we will have had over 10 years of highly publicized rivalry between the two leagues. Although some of it — before the merger — was tasteless," Rozelle told a packed hall at the El Mirador Hilton Hotel.

"But that enhanced the rivalry, and we believe this rivalry has helped pro football reach the pinnacle it now holds."

Public opinion also was taken into consideration, Rozelle said. For example, he noted, public opinion polls were taken in two AFL cities, Houston and San Diego, and 95 per cent of the response favored retention of the AFL identity.

"The committee also felt," the commissioner said, "that the Super Bowl, the All-Star game that will be started in 1971 and the inter-league contests during the season would lose a great deal of their luster if they were to be intra-league games rather than inter-league contests."

Further, the committee believes that the present four divisions of four teams each in the NFL and the two divisions of five teams in the AFL are more attractive than two sixes and two sevens in maintaining public interest in the title races toward the end of the season.

To adopt the recommended plan, or any plan, the AFL needs eight of 10 owners approving and the NFL needs 13 of 16.

The NFL is expected to approve the plan with little argument. The AFL, however, has some owners who prefer total realignment. These include Paul Brown of Cincinnati, Joseph Robie of Miami and Gerald Phipps of Denver.

Nebraska Softballer Cover Girl

CATHY BUELL . . . JFK 'Eye-catcher.'

Wahoo, Neb. (AP) — The young lady being featured on the cover of the national softball association's Softball Illustrated magazine is a "catcher" in every sense of the word.

Cathy Buell, 19, of Nelight, Neb., is a 5-foot-8 eye-catcher who says she likes to be in on every play. "I like being catcher because that's where the action is."

Cathy is a physical education major at John F. Kennedy College, has made the dean's honor roll and is president of the JFK women's letter club.

She is the 1968 "Miss Nebraska Softball," the highest honor a player can attain. She's the only girl to be named to the Nebraska All-state team four consecutive years.

The April issue of Softball Illustrated features a story on Cathy and the JFK team.

"I don't know why they picked me," she said. "Our coach, Don Joe, is more important and our team this year is the greatest. We just can't wait for spring to get started."

She said "all the team members but four work together at the University of Nebraska agricultural test farm at nearby Mead.

"We get up at 6 a.m., are in the field at 7 a.m. in the summer (to detassle corn and sorghum), get off at four and then put in several hours of practice or play a double header.

A Wichita, Kan., native, Cathy said she and her two sisters began playing softball in the streets of St. Louis.

Creighton Loses Coach

Omaha (UPI) — Tim Powers, freshman basketball coach at Creighton University the past two years, has resigned.

Cepeda Traded For Torre

. . . BRAVES REJECT MET DEAL, TORRE COMES TO TERMS

St. Louis (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals traded first baseman Orlando Cepeda to the Atlanta Braves for first baseman-catcher Joe Torre Monday night.

The 31-year-old Cepeda, came to the Cards in 1966 on a trade involving pitcher Ray Sadecki. He boosted his batting average to .325 in 1967, hitting 25 home runs and topping the National League with 111 runs batted in.

The year ended in his unanimous selection as National League most valuable player.

Torre, 28, joined the Milwaukee Braves in 1961. He holds a career batting average of .294. He hit .271 in 115 games with Atlanta in 1968.

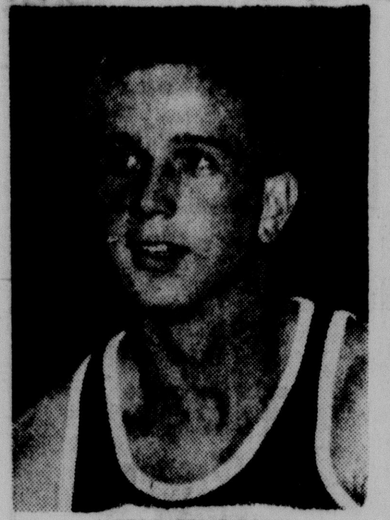
Paul Richards, vice president of the Braves, said the trade was consummated after three or four hours of haggling. He said other players had been mentioned but that it eventually boiled down to a one-for-one swap.

Torre, a holdout, had been engaged in a running verbal feud with Richards and the Braves had him on the market for most of the winter.

Atlanta was close to a deal involving him with the New York Mets but backed out of it Monday when Richards termed the players the Mets were offering "donkeys."

Torre has been troubled by injuries in each of the last two seasons and his home run production slipped from 36 in 1966 to 20 in 1967 and 10 last year.

The Cardinals announced that the veteran catcher had agreed to a 1969 contract immediately after the trade and was flying from his New York home to the St. Louis training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla.



JIM KNIGHT

Jim Knight, Ex-Rocket Cager, Dies

Jim Knight, who will be remembered by Lincoln sports fans for his big role in helping Lincoln Northeast win the 1967 state high school basketball finals, died Monday of cancer in an Omaha hospital.

Services are pending with Roper and Sons Mortuary.

Knight, 19, was a sophomore at Nebraska Wesleyan University and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Knight, 2701 N 61. His father played on the 1940 Nebraska Rose Bowl team and is now president of Citizens State Bank. Knight's grandfather, the late George A. Knight of Lincoln, was a former president of the same bank and former state senator from the 18th District in the 1961 legislative session.

Although not a regular, Knight lettered on Northeast's 1966 state runnerup team and 1967 state champions.

In the state finals the latter year against Omaha Central, Northeast trailed by eight points at the half. Knight, a good jumper and scorer from the baseline, came in midway of the third quarter to hit two straight buckets that tied the score and Northeast went on to a 64-57 victory, with Knight firing in nine points to spark the comeback.

At Wesleyan, he was a member of Theta Chi fraternity and played on the freshman basketball team.

He was also a member of First United Methodist Church and coached and officiated basketball for the YMCA.

—TOURNEY PLAY MOVES OTHERS UP—

St. Cecilia, Sterling Top Final C-D Ratings

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Hastings St. Cecilia and Sterling, No. 1 in the Class C and D ratings before the district, regional or state tournaments began, followed the form chart in capturing state tourney titles to retain their top positions in today's final ratings.

In Class C, six of the eight teams to gain the state tournament, were in the most recent top ten. Wausa, second prior to tourney time, drops to third, though the Vikings played the champion St. Cecilia quintet to within one point in the state semifinals, the same margin between Elkhorn and the winners. Elkhorn gets the No. 2 call in that the Antlers had to beat two top-ten rated foes to gain the finals.

Elkhorn St. John, though not in the state meet, stays high in the rankings, falling by just two points in its district tourney to No. 2 Elkhorn.

Grant, another Elkhorn state tourney victim, comes next, with Cambridge, winner over Hebron, No. 6. Then comes Hebron, followed by the team it beat in the regional playoffs, Johnson-Brock.

Deshler, which was barely edged, 61-60, by eventual champion St. Cecilia in the regionals belongs in the group, and Osceola, despite a mediocre record, earns No. 10 by coming within eight of the champs in the state meet.

A non-tourney team, Elmwood retains its No. 2 spot in Class D. The Pirates were the only Class D club to beat state champion Sterling, though in the regionals dropped a one-pointer to the Jets. Sterling didn't have nearly as much trouble with others at the state level.

Clarks, fourth before the district action began, moves up a notch on the strength of a second place finish at state, while Wolbach is still in the top five. Wolbach lost to Clarks in its district finals.

Yutan, which played Sterling its closest state tourney game, is next, followed by Dorchester, which gave everyone trouble during the regular season, but was beaten by No. 2 Elmwood for its district crown.

Shickley beat Wilsonville at state to decide the order of the next two, while Loomis, with one of the best records in the state, retains a top ten place despite an upset loss at the district level.

Atkinson St. Joseph, with the poorest record in the select group, takes No. 10 on the basis of an excellent showing in its first round game, losing to No. 2 Clarks by a narrow one-point margin.

Boog's HR Peps Birds To No. 7

By Associated Press

Boog Powell poled a two-run homer in the sixth inning, breaking a tie and carrying the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Chicago White Sox Monday.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Orioles, who got three hits from rookie outfielder Merv Rettenmund.

Catcher Merritt Ranew, a nonroster player, socked a pinch home run, highlighting a three-run ninth inning rally that gave Seattle an 8-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Mike Hegan had three hits and three runs batted in for the Pilots.

Wayne Granger allowed only a bunt single in the last four innings and Cincinnati tagged Washington 4-2 as the Senators dropped their 10th game in 11 exhibition starts. Pinch-hitter Pete Rose tripled a run across for the Reds.

Houston hung on for a 3-1 victory over Kansas City, snuffing out a ninth inning rally and leaving two Royals stranded on base. Dennis Menke's double keyed a two-run Astro rally in the fourth inning.

Amos Otis, Ed Kranepool and Bob Heise bunched three singles in a two-run second inning rally and the New York Mets blanked Atlanta 3-0. The Braves managed just five hits and lost their fourth game in the last five.

In other games, Cleveland edged Seattle's B team 9-8, California outlasted San Diego 12-6, San Francisco dropped Oakland 6-1 and the New York Yankees shaded Los Angeles 2-1.

Games between Pittsburgh and St. Louis, Montreal and Minnesota, and Boston and Detroit were rained out.

Temple Star's Plan Not Same As Coach's

. . . BAUM HELPS HOLD WEBSTER DOWN

New York (AP) — John Baum's game plane differed from that of his coach, but who's complaining? Certainly not Harry Litwack.

"Our game plan was to stop their fast break," Litwack said after his Temple University quintet demolished St. Peter's, N.J., 94-78 Monday night in a quarter-final game of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

"Frankly, we had no plan to double team Elnardo Webster. We just played our straight 3-2 zone and didn't get out of it all night."

"Well, I suppose so," said Baum, a 6-foot-5 jumping jack senior who scored 31 points and grabbed a career-high 23 rebounds. "But I had a plan for Webster. When he got the ball, be there; that was my plan."

In the other quarterfinal game Monday night, Bill Justus scored 34 points and set three NIT free throw records in leading methodical Tennessee to a 75-64 victory over scrappy but outclassed Ohio University.

Justus, a 6-1 all-Southeast Conference guard, notched his first 18 free throws and finished with 22-for-23. He set records for consecutive free throws made and most free throws made and attempted in a game.

Baum, one of the two men under the basket in Temple's zone, was there — and in St. Peter's hair — all night. He was instrumental in holding Webster to 14 points, on 4-15 shooting, and eight rebounds.

"Eddie Mast (Temple's 6-9 center) and I knew we had to do a job on Webster," Baum said.

Payne Expands GI Stable

. . . WANTS FONNER TRAINING TITLE WITH 23 HORSES READY

Grand, Island — If determination and a stable full of "runners" has anything to do with it trainer E. J. "Red" Payne will be the top conditioner in Grand Island when the 1969 Fonner Park meeting has run its 29-day course.

The tall Texas horseman says, "I came to Grand Island last spring a little short of ammunition and finished third in the standings behind Bob Lee. I only had 10 or 11 horses, but I plan to be on hand with at least 20 head this year."

At the latest count Payne has 23 horses under his care. The group headed by Sting's Jet and Erik Lea is the finest stable he has ever brought to Grand Island. The fine array of talent should give Payne an excellent chance to regain the Fonner training title he held in 1967.

Erik Lea's much heralded arrival in Grand Island last spring no doubt seemed to be overdone to local fans as he only made two starts and could do no better than a third and a fourth. The good allowance and handicap performer had his campaign cut short at Fonner when he was put on the shelf by an injury.

The Payne and Adams gelding reached the peak of his form near the middle of the summer. Erik Lea scored five wins in seven starts at Centennial Park and Albuquerque to give him six wins for the year. Victories in the E. T. Springer Memorial and in the Cosmopolitan Handicap in Denver went to make up a large portion of his earnings of $20,951 in 1968.

Sting's Jet was also able to account for some $20,000 last year with three triumphs. The son of Air Admiral and Jet's Sting tallied the initial win of his career at Fonner Park last spring.

Dial-A-Scratch and Dial-A-Result will again be available this year by dialing area code 308 and 384-9088. Scratches will be available each racing day from 7:45 a.m. to noon. Results will be available fifteen minutes after the last race is made official. The racing service proved so popular last year that an additional three lines will be in service this year, giving a total of five . . .

Monsanto Golf Falls To Rains

Pensacola, Fla. (AP) — Play in the final round of the $100,000 Monsanto Open Golf Tournament was postponed Monday for the second straight day as a driving rain continued to drench the Pensacola Country Club course.

The tourney will be played Tuesday — weather permitting. The weatherman, who had predicted "occasional rain" Monday for the Pensacola area, forecast "heavy rain" for early Tuesday.

Monday's round was suspended for two hours, minutes before leader Jim Colbert was scheduled to tee off, and then postponed.

If the course is still unplayable Tuesday, 75 per cent of the purse will be divided among the 71 players, with Colbert winning $15,000 and Deane Beman, one stroke back, winning $10,800.

The pro-amateur preceding the Greater Jacksonville Open starts on Wednesday.

If the final round is canceled, the money would count toward the players' official earnings, but the first prize for Colbert, who is looking for his first tournament victory, would not count toward entry in the Tournament of Champions April 17-20 in Las Vegas, Nev. Nor would it exempt him from having to play in Monday qualifying rounds for the next 12 months because the play here did not go 72 holes.

Colbert, a former life insurance agent and Kansas State freshman quarterback who has been on the golf tour four years, had a 54-hole total Saturday of 13-under-par 200 with rounds of 69-67-64 over the par 71 layout. Beman, another former insurance man, had a three-round total of 201.

Two strokes back at 202 was U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino. Bracketed at 203 were South Africa's Gary Player, in his first U.S. start this year, and 1963 rookie-of-the-year Ray Floyd. Perennial runnerup Tommy Aaron and two-time NCAA champion Dick Crawford were next at 204.

Defending champion George Archer was well back in the pack with 212.

"Sure, the $15,000 would be nice," Colbert said. "But winning the championship would mean much more."

Colbert's best finish this year was a tie for fifth in the only other 1969 tournament shortened by rain, the Kaiser Open in Napa, Calif. in January, That tournament was called after 36 holes. His best career finish was third at Jacksonville in 1967.

Colbert, who won $12,000 on the tour in 1968 and has won $2,700 so far this year, credited his success here to a sizzling putter that produced only 22 putts in the third round.

"I made the cut for the very first time on this course back in 1966," he said. He also had his second best career finish here — fourth place money in 1967.

Aaron Says Hurlers Aided By Dead Balls

. . . HELPED CURVES, FRINGE PITCHERS

West Palm Beach, Fla. (AP) — Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves stood in the dock Monday as a witness for baseball's maligned hitters and contended that the Year of the Pitcher in 1968 was built with the aid of a lead ball.

"I said last year that the ball was a lot deader;" Aaron pointed out, "and I'll say it again this year. I saw balls last year that were hit like they should go out for homers that didn't go out."

Aaron, who has hit 510 homers in a 15-year major league career during which he has compiled a lifetime .314 batting average, also cited the experiments being conducted with a new lively ball as support for his dead ball theory.

"There is," he said, "evidence right there that the ball used last year was deader. Quite a few balls were made in Puerto Rico the way I understand it and they just didn't have the quality that there was before.

"Also the stitches were easier to grasp and so pitchers could throw better curve balls.

"Listen," he continued, "this is no attempt to take anything away from Gibson or Drysdale or Marichal — they're great pitchers. But you know something's happening when so many fringe guys, pitchers who are .500 pitchers, begin throwing so many shutouts."

Aaron also said that homer-hungry hitters have to share the blame and cited his own career as an example.

"You've got to blame the hitter in some respects," Aaron admitted frankly, "because he's made the home run too big a thing. But a hitter like Pete Rose is going to revive the bloop hit and maybe we'll have more balance.

"I know I've given up a lot to try and hit more home runs. We used to be knee deep in pitchers but we need more runs now so instead of being satisfied with two or three hits a game if we're losing 1-0 in the eighth inning it's my duty to try for a homer.

"I've sacrificed average for homers."

In the last three years, Aaron has failed to reach his lifetime average, hitting .279, .307 and .287, respectively. At the same time he has hit 44, 39 and 29 homers — the latter another indication of his dead ball contention.

As for the solution to the problem, Aaron contends the probelm lies in quality baseballs and quality teaching.

"The big thing now is concentrating on pitching," Aaron said, "and I mean all the way down to the Babe Ruth leagues. No on worries about a kid hitting. All they want to know is how many games a kid wins and how many batters he strikes out.

"I think there should be a lot more concentration on teaching hitting."

LEW ALCINDOR

NBA Clubs Toss Soon For Lew

New York (AP) — The long-awaited coin-tossing ceremony deciding which National Basketball Association team will have the right to draft UCLA all-American Lew Alcindor will be held Wednesday, it was announced Monday.

The toss for the No. 1 selection in the annual NBA draft in May will take place in the office of Walter Kennedy, the NBA commissioner.

The toss will be between the teams finishing in last place in the circuit's two divisions, currently Milwaukee in the East and Phoenix in the West.

The toss will be held at 10 a.m., CST.

Alcindor, the most sought after college player in many years, had been reported drafted by the New York Nets in a secret draft by American Basketball Association teams. This was denied by both the league and the Nets.

However, ABA officials have stated the league would go to virtually any lengths to acquire the towering star of UCLA's top-ranked college basketball team, including a $1 million contract.

The 7-foot-1½ New Yorker has been an All-American in all three of his seasons with UCLA. The Bruins are favored to win the NCAA championship for an unprecedented third straight year.

Cards Forget About Series

St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP) — If you thought Red Schoendienst and the St. Louis Cardinals spent the winter mourning the loss of the World Series, forget it.

The Cards cashed their losing checks of $7,078, made a tour of Japan, traded for Vada Pinson and Dave Giusti and got ready to go after a third straight pennant.

The last team to win three in a row in the National League was the Cardinals of 1942-43-44.

Schoendienst, whose Cards finished nine games ahead of San Francisco and 13 ahead of the Chicago Cubs last year, is not one to look back.

"When something is over, it's over," he said of the defeat in seven games by the Detroit Tigers. "We'd like to play them again but as long as we win it doesn't make much difference. I don't think it will be all that easy.

"In the new division setup you have to win twice to get in the Series. First, you have to win your own division and then beat the other division's champ. But, in the long run, you've got to beat them all anyhow."

The Cardinals will operate in the Eastern Division against Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, the New York Mets and the new Montreal club.

With an outfield made up of speedy Lou Brock in left, all-star Curt Flood in center and Pinson in right, not many fly balls should fall safely at Busch Stadium. When Pinson learned of the trade he commented, "Can you imagine the three of us out there? We will have some fun."

Pinson, who owns a lifetime batting average of .296, slumped to .271 last year with the Reds. He had trouble with his legs and played in only 130 games.

With the exception of retired Roger Maris and traded Orlando Cepeda, the regular lineup is back intact to try for the third straight. Joe Torre will be at first base, Julian Javier at second. Dal Maxvill at short and Mike Shannon at third.

Rookies include Joe Hague, a 24-year-old first baseman-out-fielder, who hit .293 with 23 homers and 99 runs batted in for Tulsa; Jim Hicks, a former Chicago White Sox outfielder, now 29, who batted .366 at Tulsa and Steve Huntz, a shortstop-second baseman, coming off a .284 year at Tulsa with 10 homers and 74 RBI.

Hague and Hicks have a good chance to make the club as extra outfielders and Huntz may fight his way into a spare infield job in a scramble with Phil Gagliano and Jerry Buchek, back from the Mets.

Tim McCarver, who dropped off to .253 last year will have catching help from Dave Adlesh, acquired from Houston in the Giusti deal and Dave Ricketts.

Giusti, who came to the Cards from Houston, was picked by San Diego in the expansion draft and then reacquired by St. Louis in another deal. He is an established major leaguer. He figures to be the fifth starter behind ace Bob Gibson, Nelson Briles, Steve Carlton and Ray Washburn. Mike Torrez, back for another crack after an 8-2 year at Tulsa, is also fighting for a starting job.

In addition to Joe Hoerner, Ron Willis and Dick Hughes of the 1968 bullpen staff, the Cards have picked up Gary Waslewski, a righthander, from the Boston Red Sox.

The key, of course, is Gibson, who won the Cy Young and the Most Valuable Palyer awards by unanimous votes after a 22-9 season.

If the Cards lose it will be a major upset. Las Vegas says they will make it three in a row and so do most of the experts.

Concordia Cage Coach Stan Brassie Resigns

Concordia College basketball coach Stan Brassie has resigned in the wake of a 1-24 season at the Seward school. Brassie's teams in two years posted a 5-46 record.

Brassie will serve as assistant coach during the 1969-70 season, but a head coach has not been named as yet.

Girls' Prep Basketball Sought For Nebraska

. . . RESOLUTION IN LEGISLATURE

By United Press International

A resolution urging development of a girls basketball program in Nebraska's public schools was introduced in the Unicameral Monday by a newly converted fan of the sport.

Omaha Sen. Richard Proud said recent national publicity given to Iowa's girls basketball program had drawn his attention to it and to the "commendable" aspects of the program.

He said he also had been contacted by several constituents about their desire to implement such a program in Nebraska.

Proud said after watching the Iowa State finals on television Saturday night he was convinced of the "beneficial nature of the sport for the girls involved.

"The queston is partially one of equal rights for our girls," he said. "I don't know why our school administrators haven't implemented a program like this before.

The resolution will be laid over at least one day by the Unicameral before any action is taken on it.

It says "Although there are many forms of physical endeavor which boys and young men have available to them, their counterparts, girls, are largely confined to activities which do not contribute to physical fitness and the qualities of leadership engendered by competitive sports."

It would put the Unicameral "on record as favoring the promulgation of girls' basketball throughout our school system to the extent that it is practicable and that other sports for girls be encouraged."

'Kitten' Clawed A Little

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Hard-punching Freddie Little blasted his way to the world junior middleweight title Monday night with a 15-round unanimous decision over Stanley "Kitten" Hayward after two unsuccessful foreign tries at the title.

Little, 153½; Las Vegas, led from the opening bell over Hayward, 154, Philadelphia. There were no knockdowns.

Little opened a cut over Hayward's left eye in the third round and worked on it until Hayward was spattered with his own blood. In the 11th, Little opened another cut under Hayward's nose.

Judge Art Lurie scored the fight 73-63, judge Ralph Moses 73-64 and judge Mik Petrofich 74-62, all for Little.

Little, a 32-year-old schoolteacher, lost a controversial fight to Korea's Ki Soo Kim for the title in Korea in October 1967, and a year later fought again for the title against Italy's Sandro Mazzinghi in Rome.

The referee declared the bout no contest when Mazzinghi failed to answer the bell to the eighth round. Nevada resigned from the World Boxing Association when the agency continued to recognize the Italian as the champ.

When Mazzinghi failed to defend his crown, the WBA declared the title vacant.

Hayward, who defeated Emile Griffith last October, was on the defensive from the outset, scoring only on wild right-hand swings.

He carried a few scattered rounds, but Little's steady punching, including a hard left hook, won the fight.

Little scored his 41st victory against four defeats and one no-contest. He has 27 knockouts. Hayward is now 30-4.

Before the fight, the WBA ranked Little as the No. 1 challenger and Hayward as No. 2.

Little was guaranteed $15,000 and Hayward $7,500.

Tightening Of Marriage Laws Urged

By United Press International

Members of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee were asked Monday to tighten up the state's marriage laws as a means of cutting down on divorces.

The committee heard testimony on a bill LB927, to require a five-day waiting period to get married and to bar marriage for any girl aged 15 or under and any boy aged 17 or under, regardless of whether a pregnancy is involved.

A second bill LB926, presented to the committee would reword the state's divorce laws and include in them a provision for divorce by mutual consent with no other grounds after a two year waiting period.

Both bills were sponsored by State Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln. No action was taken by the committee on either of the bills or on three other bills it heard.

In testimony on the marriage bill, Chaplain George Edgar of the Lincoln State Hospital told the committee the "answer to the rising divorce rate is to make marriage more difficult."

Edgar said many divorces result from marriages which were entered into hastily. He said that the blood test requirement used to serve as the cause of a waiting period in Nebraska but that it no longer serves that purpose since results may be obtained in hours.

He also advocated the total ban on marriage for girls 15 and under and boys 17 and under because "pregnancy is a poor reason for allowing people under age to get married. Having relations with a girl under 16 is considered statutory rape, and yet we say it's okay to marry her."

Also testifying for the bill was Mrs. Ruby Gingles, professor of human development and the family at the University of Nebraska.

Mrs. Gingles told the committee when one member of a married couple is still in high school at the time of marriage, the odds of the marriage ending in divorce are better than 50%.

"The younger they are, the greater the divorce level," she said.

Mrs. Gingles said the fact a girl is pregnant at the start of a marriage "only compounds the problem. It is a very risky marriage."

Roadside Hunting Bills Axed By Committee

By Associated Press

Two bills permitting Nebraskans to hunt along county roadsides were killed Monday by the Legislature's Agriculture and Recreation Committee.

The bills introduced by Sen. Theodore Wenzlaff of Sutton and Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, were opposed at their public hearings by large numbers of farmers and ranchers earlier in the month.

The kills came at a special executive meeting of the Agriculture Committee. A three-hour public hearing Friday afternoon had forced the committee to adjourn without action on a number of bills.

Some of the landowners appearing against the bills had threatened to post their land against hunting if the roadsides were opened.

Proponents of the bills, including State Game Commission Director Mel Steen, had said that the measures would only legalize what large numbers of hunters are doing already.

Also killed Monday were LB744, a measure allowing the Game Commission to set up "protected lists" for game threatened with extinction, and LB505, a measure to restrict upland game bird hunting seasons to not more than 60 days.

Sen. William Wylie of Elgin, sponsor of the game bird bill, said the measure was intended to slacken the heavy toll on the state's game birds, including pheasants. Steen, who opposed the bill, said that pheasants in Nebraska "are not being over-hunted."

The committee voted to reconsider a bill sponsored by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter which had been killed Thursday.

The bill, LB88, would permit state game commission members to serve consecutive terms.

As amended and advanced to the floor by the committee Monday, the bill would allow commissioners to serve a complete term consecutive to a partial one. Serving two complete, consecutive terms would still be prohibited.

Tiemann Urged To Get Okay Of Consulting Firm Contract

Sen. Terry Carpenter Monday advocated that Gov. Norbert Tiemann not enter into a contract with a Chicago consulting firm to develop a state government personnel system without the Legislature's approval.

The chief executive reported Friday the firm will begin work within the next few weeks out of funds which must be appropriated. The study is expected to cost $60,800.

The 1967 Legislature authorized the study.

Carpenter asked the chairman of the Budget Committee, Sen. Richard Marvel, to tell the governor he "shouldn't enter into a contract without our approval."

Biafrans Now Above 'Starvation' Level

A Red Cross official, who recently spent four months in Nigeria, said here Monday that the people caught up in the Biafran war are now being held above the level of "mass starvation," but that if current food supplies were cut off, food would disappear within 14 days.

Glen Haydon, manager of the North Central Iowa Red Cross Chapter, who was in charge of relief operations of the International Committee of the Red Cross, said there are large quantities of food stored in many places around secessionist Biafra, which is "completely surrounded" by federal forces.

"I do not take sides in the conflict," said Haydon, "I am only pro kids."

Haydon said that more than two million civilians have died of starvation since members of the Ibo tribe and other smaller tribes, began their fight for independence.

Local Option Tax Support Mixed

A bill permitting a "local option" sales tax for municipalities drew mixed support but no opposition Monday before the Legislature's Revenue Committee.

Sen. William F. Swanson of Lincoln said his LB940 would enable cities and towns to impose a local sales tax up to one-half per cent, which would be collected for them by the state tax commissioner.

However, Swanson noted a "optional" rather than a "mandatory" tax could result in unfair competition and hard feelings between towns enacting different rates.

Omaha Finance Director Ed Hewitt said Omaha prefers a mandatory tax for municipalities, like that proposed in LB578, but would take the Swanson proposal as a "second choice."

LB578 would return 20% of the state sales tax to the cities and counties on a 30-40 split.

Hewitt said a local sales tax is needed "to give relief to property tax payers," and Omaha would have no objection to municipal tax relief through the income tax if the committee proposed that route.

Also supporting the Swanson measure were the City of Lincoln and Nebraska League of Municipalities.

Ken Bowen, the League's executive secretary, said the "optional tax" is preferred because many of the smaller towns probably won't want a local sales tax.

The committee adjourned without taking action on the bill and two others also heard.

They were LB986, harmonizing provisions of the law related to aircraft gasoline, and LB1048, exempting from tax certain aircraft fuels stored on privately-owned airfields.

School Bus Speed Bill Advances

The Legislature's Education Committee Monday advanced to the floor measures which would increase speed limits for Nebraska school buses and which would increase free high school tuition by $1.

Sen. Don Elrod of Grand Island, the sponsor of LB910, had proposed only a 50-cent hike in the daily tuition rate but the committee boosted it to $4.50 per day before dispatching it to the floor on a 6-1 vote.

Also advanced was Crofton Sen. J. W. Burbach's LB931, which, in its original form, would have increased all current bus speed limits by five miles per hour and set a special freeway limit of 65.

The committee voted to leave current county road speed limits unchanged, but approved the portion of the bill changing other highway school bus speeds to 55 (day) and 50 (night) and setting the new freeway speed.

Prices Seesaw In Stock Mart

New York (AP) — The stock market turned in a seesaw performance Monday.

Slightly higher at the start, it then slid into lower ground but later reversed itself to pare much of its loss.

The Dow Jones Industrial average closed off 0.25 of a point at 904.03. The Dow earlier had gone below the 900 level, losing 4.73 points to stand at 899.55.

Advances outnumbered declines by a slight margin near the opening, but the advantage was reversed quickly, and at one point losses held a near 550-issue edge over gains. This margin was whittled by the close, however.

Of 1,561 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 742 declined and 556 advanced. New highs for 1968-69 totaled 4 and new lows 116.

Volume was 9.15 million shares, compared with 8.63 million shares Friday. Forty blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded, compared with 55 Friday.

The market's early dip was attributed by brokers to a "lack of really good news" coupled with a hike in the prime rate by many of the nation's major banks that made investors cautious. The banks increased the rate they charge their most creditworthy customers from 7 to 7½%. The increase was the fourth since early December.

Investors later realized, brokers said, that the long expected increase now was a reality and this "apparently cleared the air."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 at 330.5, with industrials unchanged, rails unchanged, and tuilities off 1.2.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.13 to 55.06.

Steels and motors were mixed. Electronics were higher. Gold issues were lower, with Dome Mines off 3½.

Conglomerates generally advanced. AMK Corp., second most-active on the Big Board, rose 3. Loew's Theatres, sixth most-active, gained 1⅜. Gains of more than a point were made by Ling-TemcodVought and National General Glen Alden was off ⅜.

Control Data gained 3½, Polaroid rose 2½, Xerox was up 1¼, and IBM rose 6 among higher-priced issues.

Thirteen of the 20 most-active stocks on the New York exchange, advanced, 6 declined, and 1 was unchanged.

Occidental Petroleum, most-active on 278-900 issues, was up ⅛ at 42½.

Four of the 20 most-active issues on the American Stock Exchange declined, 14 advanced and 2 were unchanged.

Fed Steers Are Steady To Higher

Omaha (AP) — Packer demand for choice and better cattle relatively free of mud continued strong Monday.

Trade was active at Omaha, as well as at other big terminals. Receipts continued moderate to light. Tradesmen said that most cattle in the area are just not market-ready after the long stretch of adverse feeding weather and feedlot mud. Most cattle in market channels are still below par and somewhat underfinished.

This, along with the good demand for better grade cattle, kept the price rally going here. Fed steers and heifers sold generally steady to 25 higher, choice and better kinds fully 25 cents up and strong to the advance.

Steer and heifer peaks reached a three-year high as order buyers and several locals competed aggressively for numbers. Sheer lack of top-grade finish kept the steer peak from bursting upward into the low thirties, according to most market men. A load of strictly high — choice to prime 1,243 lb. beeves drew 30.50, best here since March 9, 1966.

Butcher hogs were firm to instances 25 cents higher. Supplies remained moderate.

Fat lambs sold firm to 25 higher, some shorn up more.

OMAHA

Selling Hits Grain Market

Chicago (AP) —The possibility that farmers this year may produce a record amount of grains again tended to influence widespread selling of commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

At the height of the liquidation, wheat futures gave up 3 cents a bushel; rye 3½ cents; soybeans 2 cents; and corn and oats 1¼ cents. Some active buying late in the session trimmed losses fractionally.

Trade was active, involved all facets on both sides, but buyers were scarce and premiums of ⅛ cent generally were given up by sellers.

The principal factor in the liquidation, the first this year on so general a scale, was a government report issued late Friday on the acreage farmers intend to plant a major commodities this year.

All commodities opened under selling pressure and continued lower as the session wore on. When lowest points were reached, some resistance developed and the close brought prices fractionally above the lows.

Soybean oil and meal also tended to weaken as grains came under liquidation. Oil gave up as much as 18 points, but meal showed little change.

When grain trade closed, wheat 1⅜ to 2¼ cents a bushel lower, March 1.29¾; corn was ½ to 1¼ cents lower, March 1.13¼; oats were ½ to 1 cent lower, March 65¼ cents; rye was 1½ to 2¾ cents lower, March 1.14½, and soybeans were ½ to 1½ lower, March 2.59½.

Northeast High Searched; Bomb Threat Is False

A bomb threat was received at Northeast High School Monday, afternoon, Lincoln police officials said.

Lt. Gail Gade said the threat was phoned to the school and received by an office clerk.

The standard procedure was used in searching for the alleged bomb, Gade said. Students remained in their rooms behind closed doors while police and fire officials searched the building.

No bomb was found, officials said.

3 Men Injured In Truck Fire

Three persons were treated for first and second degree burns at Bryan Memorial Hospital Monday after an early morning fire in a semi-trailer truck at the Greenwood Interchange on Interstate 80.

The injured, who were released after treatment at the hospital, were Marvin Engle of Fremont, relief driver of the truck; Arthur Claycomb of Waverly, a volunteer fireman; and Virgil Tweton, a deputy sheriff from Greenwood.

Tweton said the fire started when a propane heater exploded as he and the other two men opened the rear door of the trailer.

The driver of the truck, Max Darling of Omaha, was reportedly unhurt.

Early Education Of Handicapped Children Pushed

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Pre-school training for handicapped children and programs for multi-handicapped youths are being emphasized by the U.S. Office of Education Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, it was reported here Monday.

Associate Commissioner of Education Dr. James J. Gallagher said that early education for all kinds of handicapped children is receiving high priority in the federal office, with funds available for research, training programs and direct services.

Handicapped children need early education before poor habits are established which are difficult to change later and as preparation for regular educational programs, Gallagher pointed out.

Parents need counseling as early as possible too, he added.

Funds for 25 model centers for pre-school handicapped children will be granted soon, according to Gallagher. Some 1,000 applications have already been received, he said.

Multi-handicapped children also are a major problem that has received little attention previously, the associate commissioner said. The bureau also is offering funds for research and demonstration projects for these children.

Gallagher was in Lincoln to keynote the symposium on research and utilization of educational media for teaching the deaf, sponsored by the Midwest Regional Media Center for the Deaf located at the University of Nebraska.

He told some 250 educators of the deaf and media specialists Monday night that the "serious priority" for funding agencies is supporting "activities that will lead to a more effective educational system."

A system that would interrelate research, development, demonstration, dissemination, training and direct services is urgently needed, he emphasized.

Declaring that the "bureau is interested in experimenting," Gallagher announced that $2 million in "risk money" is available to find "new ways to train people. We are aware that colleges and universities are the most difficult to change."

The associate commissioner outlined some of the changes he expects in education for the handicapped in the future, including a "substantial increase in the number of multi-handicapped children educated" as diagnostic services are improved.

He also expects "more diversified roles" in the educational staff, an increase in federal funding for education, an increase in society assuming the responsibility for the care and education of the handicapped child and continued automation of the education process as technology advances and more materials are developed.

Two Soviet Craft Bound For Venus

Moscow (AP) — Two unmanned Soviet spaceships remain on course for a soft landing on Venus two months from now, the official news agency Tass reported Monday.

In the second progress report since Venus 5 and Venus 6 were launched Jan. 5 and 10, respectively.

'67 Miss Iowa Dies

Jeanne Formanek, 25, who won the Miss Iowa title in 1967 and was a semifinalist in the Miss America pageant that year, died late Sunday night from injuries suffered in a two-car crash near Marengo, Iowa. She was a teacher at Newton, Iowa.

Bombing Runs Zero In On Saigon's Perimeter

Saigon (AP) — High altitude B52 bombers early Tuesday dropped almost 3 million pounds of bombs on the outer defense ring of Saigon where ground commanders reported new fighting and enemy movements. The concentrated raids were among the heaviest ever mounted in one zone.

With the Communist spring offensive in its fourth week, military headquarters reported about 15 overnight shellings, none inflicting serious damage or casualties.

Ground commanders reported fresh signs of significant enemy movement in the jungled War Zone C northwest of Saigon and similarly dense War Zone D north of the capital. In these areas targets were pinpointed by radar, other electronic devices and low-sweeping helicopters carrying "people-sniffers" that detect human body odors.

The strength of enemy units in the two areas was not revealed. It is known, however, that-Viet Cong and North Vietnamese units have been slipping into the jungled infiltration routes and American intelligence officers have theorized that an ultimate blow against Saigon is planned.

The raids were concentrated in an arc northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian frontier, In addition to the eight strikes flown above Saigon, the heavy bombers twice blasted guerrilla sanctuaries deep in the marshy country of An Xuyen province on South Vietnam's lower tip

The U.S. communique noted three actions on the outer defense perimeter of the capital to the north and west — all in border provinces. In these actions 56 enemy were killed, mostly by helicopter gunships and artillery.

All three actions took place Monday. In the heaviest, a task force from the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment ran into about 300 enemy troops in the rubber plantation country around Dau Tieng, about 40 miles northwest of Saigon. Without suffering any losses, the cavalrymen pulled back and called in the artillery and gunships which killed 28 enemy.

Man Refused $500 Policy Now Insured For $11 Million

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) — Five yeas ago, an insurance company refused to sell Michael Davis a $500 life insurance policy because they felt he was a poor financial risk.

On Monday, the 34 year-old businessman purchased an $11 million policy — the largest ever written on an individual, according to the issuing company, Bankers Life Nebraska. Davis said he will pay $93,000 a year in premiums.

Davis, chairman of the board of the NEBA International Inc., a chain of sandwich stands, said he took out the policy to provide security for his wife and four daughters.

"Marjorie, my wife, thinks I'm crazy," Davis laughed, "but I don't. I've worked hard to build up the business, and I want to make sure the kids and their families have ample amounts of money if anything happens to me."

His children are Kristin, 3; Jaime, 5; Michelle, 8, and Debra, 14.

MICHAEL DAVIS

Highly Insured

Davis' policy is paid up at age 60, giving him a nice little nest egg to look forward to when he retires.

He started in the sandwich business in Lynn, Mass., when he was 16, selling submarines — torpedo-shaped sandwiches — over three feet of counter space he rented in a grocery.

At the age of 23 he moved to Albany, N.Y., and opened the first "Mike's Submarines" shop with a capital of $180.

In 11 years, he built the submarine sandwich and NEBA shops into a nationwide chain that had sales of nearly $9 million last year.

The Guinnes Book of Records says the largest previous life policy was for $10 million by American General Life Insurance Co. on the life of a 33-year-old Houston business executive, with an annual premium of $147,000.

Levine Plans To Conduct At Wesleyan

Nebraska Wesleyan University spokesmen announced Monday that Joseph Levine, former musical director and conductor of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra, has signed a one-year contract with NWU to be conductor in residence.

Levine has been conductor of the Omaha Symphony since 1958. The symphony association in January announced that Levine's contract would not be renewed when it expires in August.

The Nebraska Wesleyan position is newly created, however, Dr. Floyd Peterson, head of the music department, will give up conducting the university orchestra, NWU spokesmen said.

Youth Shoots TV King Kong With BB Gun

Ellsworth, Kan. (AP) — Scot Pruitt, 8, and his sister, Debbie, 13, were watching the old movie thriller "King Kong" on the family's color television set.

In the film, a huge ape wreaks havoc with the human race.

As tension mounted, Scott reached for his BB gun and fired. He not only stopped King Kong but the picture tube.

Mrs. Dwaine Pruitt, his mother, asked Scott why he shot King Kong, and he replied:

"He was going to get me, so I let him have it right between the eyes."

Mrs. Pruitt said the repair bill came to more than $200.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Came down with an aching back and bless me but I fell into the hands of two doctors who'd had the same thing. They were delighted.

I am now in a kind of saddle.

"We'll try this for awhile," said the medic. "See what happens."

The other doctor said I was a textbook case. "When it happened to me, I fell out of bed and couldn't get up. Had to belly crawl over to the phone."

However, all is turning out well. I am cinched up and learning to neigh.

☆ ☆ ☆

While maneuvering around, I went through the medicine shelf. We have leftover pills to cure anything. A gastronomic larder for the ailing.

I have pills three years old that were to calm me down. I have pills issued a year later. They were to pep me up.

I live in a delicate balance, baffling medical science.

☆ ☆ ☆

Here are some big yellow pills. I cannot remember what they were for. "Take as directed." The medic's name tells me nothing. What did he direct? What did I have?

I remember they cost a ruddy fortune — I have a good memory for that. Perhaps they are filled with gold dust.

I think these pills were ordered when I was wearing a dog collar. Now I am wearing a saddle. What do doctors think I am? I should go to a veterinarian.

☆ ☆ ☆

The dog collar was to keep me from moving my neck. If I wanted to look around, I had to turn my whole body. I couldn't back out of the garage.

With this back and saddle, I am not supposed to lift anything. I brought home this good news.

"Would you get me some more coffee?" I said. "I'm not supposed to lift a coffee pot."

☆ ☆ ☆

Found some vitamin pills on the shelf and I may take a few. I take vitamins on a magic basis. Pop in a couple and I think I feel better.

There is a bottle of nose drops. A bottle of something I picked up when I had a rash in Hawaii — the doctor admitted he was experimenting.

"It's new to me," he said. "It looks like you might have brushed against a Portugese man o'war. But how could you get it there?"

I have a can of spray-on cure for athlete's foot. Bought it from the Fuller Brush man. I didn't have athlete's foot, but it was such a handy can. I'm an impulse buyer.

☆ ☆ ☆

There was nothing on the shelf I could figure for an aching back. My grandmother used to rub mustard plaster on me for almost everything.

That's about the only thing we do not have.

"Shall I throw this out?" I asked.

"That's my shoe dye," she said snatching it from me.

"Why keep it here?" I said. "I might have taken a slug of it."

"Because if I dye my shoes, I do it in the bathroom," she said logically. "Why on earth would you take shoe dye?"

"I'm a desperate person," I said. "I might take anything."

☆ ☆ ☆

That's why the health magazines are always after you to throw away medicine.

"Leftover medicines can be dangerous. Even if only you depend on them and they have lost their potency."

Everything on the shelf looks potent to me. "Apply as directed." (What did he direct? For what?)

"My back's a lot better," I told the doctor.

"It is?" he said. He seemed quite surprised.
